Does the police log include all that it should?

By Don Staruk

A woman is raped. Although she is hesitant, she reports the crime to police. Detectives assure the woman that her privacy will be protected, and keep details of the report confidential. The incident is omitted from the daily police log available to the public and the press so that the incident won't be published in newspapers. But in doing so, are the police breaking the law?

Police departments and the news media throughout the state and the country deal with this type of situation to some extent on a daily basis, and Andover is no exception.

At least 16 incidents were omitted from Andover's police log in the month of August. Most were the result of computer glitches, such as miscoded files or files not being closed when the report was printed, and were corrected once brought to the attention of the department. But at least one, on Aug. 10, was the report of a rape that was deleted from the log intentionally.

At least twice this year, the arrests of juveniles charged with breaking into or trespassing in homes were partially or completely omitted from the police log, and were only brought to the attention of the press when concerned citizens wanted to know why they had been left out.

This is not to say that anyone at the Andover Police Department was knowingly breaking a law, but it does indicate there is a variation in the understanding and interpretation of,

Survey: Teens want youth council, jobs

By Don Staruk

Teens in Andover want a youth council to represent them. They want part-time jobs, opportunity for day and weekend trips out of town and, not surprisingly, more dances, music and sports. They don't necessarily want a teen center, but they want to be involved in activities helping younger kids and elders. The majority do not think their parents would get involved in planning or supervising teen activities, or would help fund such activities.

All this is according to the teen survey given to middle- and high-school students last June following the Townsman's Andover for Teens series.

Survey: Seniors want a new center

By Neil Fater

Even taking into account the document's inaccurate figures, some leading questions and misleading summaries, the survey conducted by the Andover Council on Aging still managed to lend support to what seemed a preconceived conclusion: That the town of Andover is in desperate need of a new center for senior citizens.

"Andover exudes a certain level of affluence within the community, and other communities view this town as one of high quality," the survey states in its conclusion. "However, the status of the services currently offered by the town to its senior citizens is somewhat of an embarrassment in comparison to the standards and ideas the town has set for the other departments in the community."

Townsman names new reporter, photographer

Reporter Neil Fater and photographer Lisa Adelsberger have joined the staff of the Andover Townsman.

Mr. Fater, a May graduate of Tufts University and a resident of Andover since 1976, takes the position formerly held by Lisa Boudreau, who left after almost five years to take a job with an area software company.

Neil Fater

Mr. Fater was an intern with the Townsman the summer of 1992. In addition to covering the schools and School Committee, he will also write feature stories.

He enjoys baseball and blues. "I have a ticket to Reggie Lewis' last game and a Buddy Guy guitar pick from the legend's most recent Boston performance," said Mr. Fater.

Mr. Fater spent five semesters at Tufts on the university's daily newspaper, as a sports writer, editor, and then as the paper's associate editor. Tufts is the smallest school in the United States with a daily paper, and yet as sports editor he was able to attain press passes to Red Sox spring training, as well as travel to Washington to cover developments in the Gulf War.

Before signing on with the Townsman, Mr. Fater worked as a freelance news reporter for the Woburn Advocate. For 18 months, Mr. Fater has been a part-time research assistant at Tufts to Frank Colcord, former dean, former chairman and co-creator of the Urban and Environmental Studies Department. With Professor Colcord, Mr. Fater has studied the effects of political culture on state's revenue and expenditure adjustment in response to President Reagan's New Federalism.

Photographer

Ms. Adelsberger has a bachelor of fine arts degree in photography from University of the Arts in Philadelphia. While attending high school, Ms. Adelsberger took part in an intensive part-time art program at the Museum School at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. She is a 1984 graduate of Winchester High School.

Lisa Adelsberger

She has taken classes at New England School of Art and Design in Boston, as well as photography courses at New England School of Photography, also in Boston.

Before joining the Townsman, Ms. Adelsberger worked at W.B. Hunt Company in Melrose, in photographic retail sales. She also worked as a photographer in New Jersey taking product shots for magazine advertisements.

Ms. Adelsberger designed and illustrated a children's book that currently is pending publication.

"I enjoy painting, too, and I find that in my personal work I try to blend photography and painting," said Ms. Adelsberger. "Most of the work that I do now is hand colored portraits."

Those portraits, said Ms. Adelsberger, are not set-up portraits. They are more candid shots that don't have the look of being set up in a studio.

Readers who would like to suggest a photo opportunity for Ms. Adelsberger can call editor Perry Colmore at 475-1943 with the suggestion. And of course, readers' story suggestions, for Mr. Fater or anyone on the staff, are always welcome.

NEWS DEADLINE at the Townsman is Monday at 5 p.m., except for school news, which is due Friday at 5 p.m.

News In Brief

Train-whistle hearing Sept. 29

The continued public hearing on the blowing of train whistles in Andover will be held Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 10 a.m. in the offices of the Department of Public Utilities, 100 Cambridge St., Boston.

Town officials have been getting complaints since last fall when approximately 200 residents signed a petition in support of quieting the whistles. The complaints are that the whistles are being blown louder and more frequently than was past practice.

Selectmen petitioned the DPU for complete elimination of the whistle blowing.

At the evidential hearing Sept. 29, both sides will present evidence for their arguments. The DPU will then consider the evidence and make a ruling.

Josh Miner to speak here

The League of Women Voters of Andover invites all townspeople concerned about Andover teens to an open meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Hall Library. Joshua L. Miner of School Street, founder of Outward Bound in this country, will speak on youth and values in our community.

Mr. Miner was the dean of admissions of Phillips Academy and has been an advocate for young people for 35 years. As founding trustee, he brought Outward Bound to this country from Scotland, where he had been teaching. He has served as a consultant on urban affairs to the Peace Corps and the Ford Foundation and was vice chairman to the White House Conference on Youth.

Mr. Miner has been honored by the American Academy of Achievement and the Appalachian Mountain Club for his work with young people and is the co-author of Outward Bond. He received five combat stars, the Purple Heart and Bronze Star for service as battery commander in Patton's Third Army. He is a member of the Our Town group of Andover leaders who have been meeting regularly to discuss teen issues.

The open discussion is an introduction to the League of Women Voters of Andover's current study and planned action on youth and values in our community chaired by Tina Girdwood.

Police enforce safety downtown

By Don Staruk

Andover police are doing double duty this week operating two separate programs enforcing pedestrian safety and use of seat belts and car seats for children.

"We're doing some extra patrolling. We did some Saturday, in the square," Lt. Phillip Froburg, operations director for the department, said this week.

In Elm Square, officers are stopping pedestrians not using crosswalks and motorists not stopping for pedestrians in crosswalks. They are handing out reminders for pedestrians to follow the rules and citing motorists for flagrant violations. Failure to stop for a pedestrian in a crosswalk is punishable by a $100 fine and an insurance surcharge of $100 per year for three years.

While the officers are not citing pedestrians for jaywalking violations, the message is to stay in the crosswalks, Lt. Froburg said.

Project safe baby

The second program is called Project Safe Ride and is aimed at educating motorists in the use of child safety restraints. Information being handed out by police includes the facts that more children in this country are killed or crippled from car crashes than any other cause, and nine out of 10 children who are killed could have been saved if they had been in a car seat or wearing a seat belt.

Three patrols will be on every morning and again in the afternoon hours, from 2-5 p.m., stopping cars along Main Street when car seats or seat belts are not being used for children, as required by state law.

The violation is punishable by a $25 citation, and may result in surcharges on motorists' insurance premiums, according to Lt. Froburg.

The program gives motorists the opportunity to avoid paying the fine and the surcharges by attending a one-hour class at Lawrence General Hospital. The class teaches about "crash dynamics" and uses films to show what happens to children in a car crash, and teaches proper use of a child safety seat

Bar Assoc. plans educational forum

The Lawrence Bar Association will hold its first annual Educational Forum Friday, Oct. 1, from 2 to 6 p.m. at Massachusetts School of Law, 500 Federal St.

Four different speaking programs are being offered, featuring attorneys and experts in a variety of fields. Topics include updates on elder law, impact of the new Medicaid laws, legal risk management techniques and stress management for lawyers. The program will also include a dialogue between judges who sit in Essex County and attorneys. The judges sitting on this panel are Mary McCauley Manzi, of the Essex Probate and Family Court; Kevin M. Herlihy, first justice of the Lawrence District Court; Douglas Bean, administrative judge of the Department of Industrial Accidents; and Elizabeth B. Donovan, regional administrative judge and associate justice of Essex Superior Court.

Call Pamela Schwartz at 683-6272.

Selectmen to discuss cable TV changes

By Don Staruk

Selectmen will discuss rate changes and other changes in Andover's cable television service Monday night with Robert Carr Jr., president of TeleCommunication Inc. of Andover. TCI is the company that bought the former Heritage Cablevision and now provides the town's cable service.

Selectmen expect to discuss the Federal Communication Commission's determination last May that the Massachusetts Community Antenna Television Commission should be the "franchising authority" for the purposes of rate regulation in the state. The town's position is that state law provides for city managers, mayors and boards of selectmen to be the local issuing authorities, and that the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992 vests the rate setting authority with the municipal franchising authorities.

The town has drawn up a letter to the state cable commission asking that it go ahead and regulate basic service and equipment rates on the town's behalf, but reserving the right to rescind that request in the future, "as may be appropriate." The letter is signed by Bill Downs, chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

"It's protecting the future interests of the town," said Tony Torrisi, budget and finance director and liaison to the town's Cable Advisory Committee.

The letter is expected to be discussed and endorsed by the advisory committee during that committee's meeting tonight, Thursday, at 7:30 p.m., in town offices.

Other issues

Mr. Carr said this week that other recent regulatory changes did not have a big effect on Andover's cable television rates or services.

"In our particular area, there really wasn't a significant impact in a great many homes. Some went up, some went down," Mr. Carr said.

Basic service went up 40 cents, and for homes with more than one outlet, service rates decreased.

The Learning Channel

Selectmen may hear from Crystal Raadmae, 11, of 95A N. Main St. during their meeting Monday night. The Doherty Middle School student is upset TCI doesn't include The Learning Channel in its programming menu.

"My mom wants it because it's educational for little kids, for people in grade school; it's educational for adults," Ms. Raadmae said during a visit to the Townsman this week.

She said the two children for whom she babysits need it. She also said her mother's boyfriend got interested in flying watching adult educational programming on The Learning Channel and now he has his pilot's license.

"Why not have it? It's educational," Ms. Raadmae said.

Ms. Raadmae said TCI would include The Learning Channel in its programming if enough people requested it. She asked that people call, write or attend the cable committee's meetings or the selectmen's meeting Monday night to let TCI know they'd like to have access to The Learning Channel.

Mr. Carr said the company has a limited channel capacity and that if The Learning Channel was made available, something else would have to go. But he said that Ms. Raadmae is correct, if there were a "groundswell of public opinion" for it, it would be made available.

"It's a pretty good channel. There's no denying that," Mr. Carr said.

The company already offers the Arts and Entertainment and Discovery channels, he said.

Bereavement group set

A new group to provide support for people who have experienced a loss through death of a loved one will start Wednesday, Oct. 6, in the Hale Hospital board room from 7 to 8:30 p.m. This 10-week free program is designed for adults only. In addition to discussion, materials will be presented on the stages of grief.

The program is offered by Hale Hospital in Haverhill, in conjunction with Home Health VNA. Pre-registration is required. Call Kim Snow at 521-8559.

2 PA students hit by car

By Don Staruk

Two 14-year-old Phillips Academy students were struck by a car while crossing Main Street in front of the school yesterday, Wednesday, morning, but neither was seriously hurt.

Ann Bourneuf, of Cambridge, and Selina Mochizuki, of Santa Barbara, Calif., both residents of PA's Samaritan House on School Street, were each treated for pain and bruising to their right legs at Lawrence General Hospital and released. No bones were broken.

The girls were crossing Main Street from west to east about 40 feet north of Chapel Avenue at 7:55 a.m. when the incident occurred.

They had crossed the southbound lane and stopped on the median to wait for a truck traveling in the northbound lane to pass. The truck stopped and waved them across, but they didn't see a car in the second northbound lane and ran out from in front of the truck into the path of the car.

Linda DeAngelo, of 5 Blackberry Lane, the driver of the car, was traveling about 20 mph and "skidded a bit but managed to a stop," according to Officer Joseph Ouellette.

"As she came to a stop, the two girls got hit," he said.

"Luckily the speed was low," Officer Ouellette said.

Rain and the fact that neither of the girls nor the driver saw each other caused the accident, he said.

"I don't foresee any citations," Officer Ouellette said Wednesday morning after interviewing the girls and the driver of the truck.

Classes at PA started last week. Beverly Henderson, publicity director for the school, was not sure if both girls were first-year students.

Your Dental HEALTH

HABITS TO BREAK

When infants suck their thumbs, the habit should be dismissed as normal and healthy. If thumbsucking persists beyond the age when permanent teeth emerge, however, it can lead to tooth misalignment (malocclusion). The serious form of malocclusion known as an "open bite" features front teeth that fail to meet when the jaws are closed. In the case of thumbsucking, this condition is caused by the thumb pushing the upper front teeth upward and outward, while the lower front teeth are coaxed downward and inward. An open bite may also result from a habit known as tongue-thrusting, which is the habit of thrusting the tongue against the front teeth when swallowing. Tone-thrusting is a more difficult habit to break than thumbsucking and may require help from the dentist.

Caught early enough, healthy habits turn into healthy lifestyles. Begin with proper brushing and flossing techniques and healthy foods. Continue with regular professional care and cleaning for a healthy smile that will last a lifetime. And if thumb-sucking has brought about problems, seek professional help in solving them. For complete dental care for kids to grandparents, call us at 475-2431. At 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93, office hours are Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-5 and by appointment.

PS: In extreme cases, the dentist can fabricate a habit-control appliance to discourage thumbsucking.

VOLUNTEERS

Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley Inc. is recruiting men and women to provide Lawrence elders with personal safety and crime prevention information. A three-part training series for volunteers will focus on specific personal safety information, crime prevention techniques, elder abuse laws and presentation skills. Volunteers are asked for a minimum commitment of four hours monthly from September to December. For more information, call Elaine Rotolo at 683-7747.

Are you concerned about the environment and willing to help make a difference? Do you enjoy the outdoors and like working with children? You can share your interest in nature by becoming a volunteer at the Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield.

A new training course begins Nov. 5 and meets for 12 Thursdays from 9:30 to noon to prepare volunteers to become field guides for school groups visiting the sanctuary. Classes will include basic natural history information and field investigations. Teaching tips and activities to explore the world of nature with small groups of school children will also be taught.

Here's the latest rulings by the Zoning Board of Appeals

By Alix Driscoll

The Zoning Board of Appeals ruled on several issues in its deliberation meeting Saturday, Sept. 11. The five member board voted to approve a six-month extension to Vicor Corp. for the existing use variance on land on Frontage Road, and an extension to a special permit for Andover Business Park Associates I Limited Partners to allow the operation of a wholesale business center at 200 Bulfinch Drive.

The board also approved the installation of a roof-mounted satellite dish by Elaw Corp. (Merrill Lynch) at 2 Elm Square. It allowed a special permit for the extension of a pre-existing non-conforming structure at 15 Corbett St. by Richard and Julia Strumpfler and, agreed to the petition of Ernest A. Gravallese for a special permit to allow the continued existence of a two-family dwelling at 174 Lowell St. Mr. and Mrs. William Guay received permission for a special permit to allow the extension of a pre-existing non-conforming structure at 12 Oak St.

The Zoning Board of Appeals approved signs for PAJE Inc., which is Century 21 Carriage House, and Middle Reality Trust at 10 High St.

Gasoline Merchants Inc. at Route 125 and Salem Street must re-advertise its petition for a change to its sign.

The board turned down the petition of John's Village Deli at 22 Andover St. for three free standing signs.

Cumberland Farms' petition for a price index sign and free standing sign that exceeds height and size was turned down.

James and Evelyn Loscutoff's petition for a special permit concerning an outdoor recreation club was withdrawn. Donald Aikman's request for a variance from the zoning bylaw to allow storage of flammable solvents at 19 Dale St. was withdrawn.

The Zoning Board of Appeals meets again on Thursday, October 7.

Rabies clinic set for Sunday

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals shelter will hold a rabies clinic for cats and dogs Sunday, Sept. 26, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Methuen Police Station, 90 Hampshire St.

Inoculations are $5 each. Proceeds benefit the shelter.

The MSPCA rabies clinic is co-sponsored by the Methuen Police Department and is open to Massachusetts and New Hampshire residents.

Cats must be confined in carriers and dogs must be leashed. (Cardboard cat carriers may be purchased for $1 at the shelter.) Owners of previously vaccinated cats and dogs must bring proof of prior vaccination.

Dr. Donald Marcus of the Methuen Veterinary Clinic and Dr. Alicia Faggella of the MSPCA's Angell Memorial Animal Hospital in Boston are donating their services.

The Doberman Rescue League will also sponsor a tattoo clinic for dogs at the same time. Cost is $12 per dog and proceeds will benefit the Doberman group.

State law requires that all cats and dogs 6 months of age or older be vaccinated against rabies.

For more information, call the MSPCA Shelter at 687-7453 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

Two computers missing from AHS

By Neil Fater

Staffing cuts and lackadaisical organization have led to the disappearance, and likely theft, of a pair of computers from the Andover High School.

"'We've tracked down one of them, anyway," said Ken Kwajewski, the computer education project director. "But we're still missing two," one Macintosh and one IBM.

Upon their return to school this fall, workers in the computer lab found they could not account for three computers, which are used by students for computer classes and to type reports. "We try to do a complete inventory twice a year," said Mr. Kwajewski.

> 'We've got to do a little better job ourselves. (But) the schools are just so open during the summer.'

The last materials check was done around the end of the school year in June. One of the missing computers was repaired in the school but was lost somewhere in transit between the main office and the computer lab.

"We've got to do a little better job ourselves," said Mr. Kwajewski. (But) "the schools are just so open during the summer."

Mr. Kwajewski also mentioned that there had been cuts in staff.

"It's not a serious problem," he said, "but it's enough of a problem."

Mr. Kwajewski said he had hoped that teachers had mistakenly taken the lab computers for their own, but that as time goes on and because there have not been answers to his memo, he doubts the computers are still in the school and simply misplaced.

Currently, there are a handful more students in computer courses than computers, and the loss of these two means that a few more students will have to double up.

Last year a CD-ROM was taken from the school and was never retrieved.

"I hope they do come back," Mr. Kwajewski said. "My hope is dimming."

2 real estate firms merge

HH Gilbert Management Corp., a Woburn-based commercial/residential property management firm, has joined forces with the Phillips Aaron Group, Howard H. Gilbert Jr., of 20 Exeter Way, announced recently.

H. H. Gilbert Jr.

The Phillips Aaron Group is a real estate consulting organization.

M. Phillips Loftin, a registered architect and 1992 graduate of the MIT Center for Real Estate, has joined the firm as vice president and CFO. Prior to returning to school, Mr. Loftin was a project manager for several major architectural firms in Boston and Atlanta.

Richard A. Parritz, a 1988 graduate of The Fuqua School of Business at Duke University, has joined Gilbert as VP. He worked for a national syndicator prior to business school. After receiving his MBA, he was an asset manager and project finance associate, conducting financial sensitivity analysis for development and OREO properties to determine valuation and assess capitalization.

Marcia E. Anthony has been brought in as a property manager and management services coordinator. She will be responsible for processing incoming requests for service and resident issues, scheduling and coordination of services and repairs, property inspection and management of on-site staff, and more.

Ms. Anthony's background is in the graphic arts field. She worked for several years as a production coordinator, editor, illustrator and graphic artist. She is currently undergoing the Community Associations Institute PMDP designation training. She is also an interior decorator, certified paralegal, licensed real estate salesperson and a notary public.

Realtor course offered in area

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) will offer Course 202 of the Realtor Institute (GRI) program in conjunction with the Greater Lawrence Board of Realtors on Sept. 28 and 29 at the Days Inn, 159A Pelham St., Methuen.

The two-day course is open only to association members. The 15 hours of classroom instruction are on several industry topics, including architecture, construction, condominiums and corporate relocation. The comprehensive course curriculum is designed primarily for realtors licensed for less than five years. However, recent revisions to the course content make the program ideal for experienced real estate professionals who wish to learn more about current issues.

The GRI 202 course is one of six modules which comprise the 90-hour Realtor Institute program. Students may register for courses in any sequence. Tuition is $175 if registered after Sept. 21. For a course application or to register by VISA or Mastercard, call the MAR Education Department at (617) 890-3700.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

THAT "SLEEPY" FEELING

Anyone who doubts the influence that nerves have upon various parts of the body should conjure up the feeling experienced by an arm "going to sleep." The pins-and-needles effect upon a "sleeping" arm is not a circulatory response, but the result of nerve signals being disrupted by sitting with legs crossed or sleeping on one's arm. With the body in those positions, the nerve becomes compressed and nerve signals are interfered with. Fortunately, it only takes restoration of the body to a more comfortable and natural position to resume the nerve to its normal functioning. What about the case of a compressed nerve in the back or elsewhere? Without alleviating the cause of the compression, the lost nerve energy may result in a "sleepy" organ in some part of the body served by the nerve.

If you are experiencing pain or numbness in your extremities or have pain in your neck, shoulders or back, we hope you will give chiropractic a try. For many types of health problems, call us at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. A herniated disc may sometimes be the cause of nerve compression and reduced nerve energy flow.

Bruegger's opens on Main Street

Now that Bruegger's Bagel Bakery has opened its doors at 10 Main St., more people can open their day with a fresh baked breakfast. But customers can open their mouths to more than just bagels and cream cheese, because the bakery will also offer a new coffee blend, as well as soup and deli-style sandwiches at lunch.

With a ribbon cutting ceremony at 10:30 a.m. Monday, and after sending out a coupon for six free bagels to many in town, employees at Bruegger's found themselves with plenty to do during their first day.

"It went just fine," Jon Stilianos, the operating partner of Andover's Bruegger's, said of the first day.

Bruegger's bakes 10 types of bagels and has eight exclusive varieties of Vermont-made cream cheese on its menu.

Bruegger's has also cooked up a contribution, $250, for the Andona Society in an effort to aid the youth of the town.

"Bruegger's is the type of corporation which is very conscious of the needy," said Mr. Stilianos. He expressed in a press release that he figures to work closely with the Andona Society in the future.

There are a total of 74 Bruegger's in operation, all on the East Coast.

The Andover bakery will be open every day of the week – from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Business 'spectacular' is today

Curt Gowdy Broadcasting will hold its second annual Merrimack Valley Business Spectacular today, Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Ramada Hotel Rolling Green, Exit 43 off Route 93.

The event will feature businesses in retail, food service, finance, health care, marketing, manufacturing, recreation, hospitality, the building trades and more. Admission is free. There will be free food from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

Former Celtic John Havlicek and broadcaster Curt Gowdy will sign autographs from 3-6 p.m. There will be drawings for trips to Florida and Las Vegas, weekend getaways, cellular phones, dinners and more.

Coming next month: Women in Business, a special section featuring successful businesswomen in Andover.

Stanley Martin to chair law group

Andover resident Stanley A. Martin has been appointed by the Massachusetts Bar Association to chair the association's public law section. Mr. Martin is a partner in the Boston office of the Boston and Washington law firm of Gadsby & Hannah.

Massachusetts Bar Association sections provide lawyers with up-to-date information on specific areas of law, monitor law-related legislation, sponsor professional education programs and provide information for the public.

Nicholas A. Rizzo's trial is delayed

By Don Staruk

The federal trial of Nicholas A. Rizzo Jr., charging the chief fund raiser for Paul Tsongas' 1992 presidential campaign with fraud, has been postponed. The trial was scheduled to begin at the U.S. District Court in Boston last week, Wednesday, Sept. 15, but has been rescheduled to begin Tuesday, Oct. 12.

Mr. Rizzo, 60, of 30 Hemlock Road, is charged with defrauding the Tsongas campaign of more than $1 million and for fraudulently obtaining approximately $2.8 million in bank loans. The 46-count indictment, handed down last February, charges Mr. Rizzo with mail fraud, money laundering, bank fraud, making false statements to the Federal Election Commission and violation of federal election laws.

Mr. Rizzo, owner of Spenco, a specialty auto parts distributor with offices at 1 Elm Square, raised funds for Mr. Tsongas' Senate and congressional campaigns, and Jimmy Carter's 1980 re-election campaign. He has suffered ill health in the past year.

SCHOOLS

'The Storyteller' plans visits to Andover elementary schools

Dylan Pritchett, known as "The Storyteller," will visit Andover elementary schools between Sept. 28 and Oct. 6. A $5,000 grant from Marshall's Inc. to the Andover elementary schools cultural enrichment committee will make this possible. He will spend one or two days at each elementary school, telling stories of African-American history from the 18th and 19th centuries. He animates his stories through movement and body expression, costumes, dialects and participation of his audience.

Mr. Pritchett was born and raised in Williamsburg, Va. He has always been involved with the learning and teaching of history, organizers said. The stories he tells can be found in sources easily accessible to the public, fables handed down in the oral tradition, including some original work.

The purpose of the program is to give the audience an appreciation for the oldest known teaching technique, organizers said. Another equally important reason that Mr. Pritchett continues to perform is to demonstrate step-by-step how storytelling can be used to discuss people, culture, beliefs and history. Although the stories are African and African-American in context, the lessons taught are universal.

Fourth- and fifth-grade students will view a special performance called "Scraps of History." This detailed program uses primary resources to examine history, such as 18th- and 19th-century newspapers, first-person accounts and historical documents. This presentation ties into the social studies curriculum that was fully implemented this 1993-'94 school year.

Mr. Pritchett will be at West Elementary School Tuesday, Sept. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Parents and members of the community are invited.

He will also be at Memorial Hall Library Saturday, Oct. 2. Tickets for this performance will be available from the Children's Room beginning today, Thursday, Sept. 23.

Dylan Pritchett, "The Storyteller," will visit Andover elementary schools and Memorial Hall Library. Parents and the community are invited to attend. Tickets for his performance at the library will be available at the Children's Room of the library beginning today, Sept. 23.

Youth Leaders Club at YMCA offers leadership training, activities for teens

The Youth Leaders Club for ages 13-18 at the Andover/North Andover branch of the YMCA is starting again.

Activities include leadership training, values education, hiking and other outdoor adventures, pizza parties, group swims and events at other YMCAs, as well as the opportunity to volunteer weekly in many of the Y's preschool and youth programs.

The first meeting will be held tonight, Thursday, Sept. 23.

Call teen adviser Beth Geddes at 685-3541 for more information.

DCS plans to offer foreign language clubs for children

Beginning this month, the Department of Community Services will offer foreign language clubs for children.

The Spanish club will be based at Bancroft Elementary School, led by Mary Ann Hibino, an ESL teacher in Andover for three years.

Ms. Hibino took college-level courses in Spanish and taught bilingual programs in the Chicago public school system for 10 years.

Ms. Hibino was born in the Philippines and lives in Andover with her husband and three boys.

The French club will meet at West Elementary School, led by instructor Patricia Gregory. Ms. Gregory was born in southwest France. With a French father and an American mother, she has roots in both cultures. She has two French college degrees and worked in the education field in France and the United States.

She taught adult French classes for DCS in 1982 and 1983 and has conducted children's play groups and tutored middle-school, high-school and adult students since 1989.

Ms. Gregory lives in Andover with her husband and three children.

The deadline for school news is Friday at 5 p.m.

Andover High students shoot documentary at Tewksbury

Several Andover High School students participated in the videotaping of a television documentary at the Tewksbury State Hospital's rehabilitation center, and edited the final version during the summer.

Students from the Introduction To Television Production classes and members of the AHS Video Club spent a day touring the facility and interviewing the staff and patients. They were joined by Harry J. Durso, the television production teacher for the 1992-'93 school year, and Jay Darren, a math teacher at the high school and also the coordinator of the high school's community service program.

The shoot was organized by Mr. Durso along with Norma Eisenberg, president of the Merrimack Valley Citizens Area Board of the Department of Mental Health; Dorothy Wallace, director of inpatient rehabilitation services for Tewksbury State Hospital; and Mary Jean Hughes, director of the hospital's rehabilitation center.

The purpose of the documentary was to illuminate the stigmas and problems mentally-ill patients face once they leave the hospital and to show the many facets of the rehabilitation program provided by the state facility. The students participated in a community meeting where patients and staff discussed the issues of the week. They toured the vocational workshops, viewed the recreation areas and observed a meeting of Recovery Road where patients with drug- and alcohol-abuse problems meet for counseling.

They also attended a cookout and played softball and volleyball with the patients. The students were also able to videotape the weekend coffeehouse, Castle Cafe, where patients perform and sing. In addition, the students conducted several interviews with the staff. One patient volunteered to be interviewed in depth by the students because of her beliefs about communicating to the public the real feelings and problems of the mentally ill.

Possible plans for the completed documentary include airing the show this fall on Channel 12 in Andover and integrating it into the psychology curriculum at the high school.

The documentary was hosted by Kate Lennon, from the Video Club, and Sherri Moran, a member of the class. The cameraman was Domenic Singh, also a member of the Video Club. Other television production students who participated in the shoot were Tim Sullivan, Jake Bannon, Joel Katz, Desiree Woods, Kacee Fritchy and Stephanie Pillot.

Karen Hayden is the TCI Cablevision representative who runs the Video Club.

Marketing students go to Big Apple fashion show

Twenty-one Andover High School marketing students recently attended the largest merchandise show in the country at the Javitz Convention Center in New York City. Students not only witnessed professional buyers and sellers in action, but were also able to make purchases at wholesale prices. This has been a yearly marketing field trip for the past several years. Student Frank Paone said, "I thought it was an excellent experience with a plethora of opportunities to make a good deal on retail items. Wall Street was cool."

"It was an interesting experience and I'm very glad I was a part of it. I would definitely do it again next year," Lindsay Hollinger said.

"The students' attitude and professionalism were most outstanding," said their advisers, Jo Ann Samra and Joseph Spanos.

Women & Custody

If you are separated from your husband and are concerned that your husband may intend to fight you for custody of your children, you may be hesitant to date, socialize or pursue a career because you are afraid you will lose your children if you do. If you have been the primary caretaker of your children before or since the separation, the standard which a Court will apply to determine which parent shall be awarded custody—the best interest of the children—does not necessarily require you to make drastic changes in your life style or your career.

Eagle Scouts Kurt Kozat and Sean Donohue

Sean Donohue and Kurt Kozat received Scouting's highest badge at an Eagle Scout ceremony this summer. The award was presented by Harold Tyning, scoutmaster of Troop 74, who has worked closely on Sean and Kurt's scouting projects. This formal recognition of Eagle Scout rank is achieved by less than 2 percent of Boy Scouts nationally. Their Eagle Awards were also recognized by a Presidential Achievement certificate signed by President Clinton.

Sean's environmental concern was reflected in his Eagle Scout project. He organized the cleanup of five miles of the Shawsheen River from Tewksbury to Ballardvale's Mill Pond dam. Sean developed a detailed work plan in conjunction with last year's Andover's Earth Day. Fifteen Andover High School students canoed the recesses of the river and retrieved several barrels, rimmed tires, a plastic sled, car parts and 18 bags of trash.

Sean has earned 27 merit badges and is a member of the Order of the Arrow, an honorable scouting society. He is an honor-roll student involved in the high school outing club, community services and varsity hockey team and is involved in archery, hiking, canoeing, hunting and fishing. Sean is the son of Francis and Carole-Jean Donohue of River Road.

Kurt's Eagle project helped raise money for the West Parish Church steeple fund. He successfully ran and supervised three ham-and-bean suppers, making more than $5,000.

The Andover High School senior had above-average grades last year, maintaining a 3.0 grade-point average. He is active in after-school sporting events, such as football and track and field and he enjoys fishing and camping.

Kurt is the son of Walter and Loellen Kozat.

Three Andover High School students have been named National Merit Semifinalists in the 1994 National Merit Scholarship competition. They are, from left, Dave Douglas of Blueberry Circle, Sarah Hamilton of Clark Road, and Akilesh Palanisamy of Topping Road. The semifinalists are the highest-scoring program participants in each state. The 15,000 students represent about half of 1 percent of each state's high school graduating class. Finalists are then considered for some 6,500 Merit Scholarships, worth $25 million.

Students should register now for PSAT/NMSQT

The attendance office at Andover High School is accepting registration of sophomores, juniors and seniors for the Preliminary National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Students can register Monday through Friday, periods 4,5,6 or 7, or after school until 2:30 p.m. The cost of the exam is $13.50 payable by check only at the time of registration. The check should be made payable to Andover High School. No registrations will be accepted after Friday, Oct. 8. A student bulletin, which contains a sample test and answer key, will be given to students when they register.

This test is given for four reasons:

- To understand the contents of the Scholastic Aptitude Tests;
- To estimate a student's chance of getting into and succeeding at the college(s) of his/her choice;
- To enter the competition for scholarships awarded through the National Merit Scholarship Program; and
- To participate in the Student Search and to send the names of individual students, if the student indicates, to the colleges looking for students of particular ability.

The test is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 16, from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

All registered students should report no later than 8:30 a.m. that day.

Dear Bagel Lover:

At the Butler's Pantry, we have always had smart customers. They buy the highest-quality bagels – kettle-boiled fresh daily, never baked off – and they pay only 40¢ each for them, while getting 3 FREE with every dozen purchased. That means you only have to buy 4 dozen (not 6) to get 1 dozen free – no cards, no coupons, just bagels. Think about it – that's smart.

Plus we can fill your bagel with hand-sliced nova lox and the best cream cheese with no gums or additives.

So now tell us ... why would bagel lovers buy their bagels anywhere else? Why pay more for less than the best?!

West Fest returns for second year

West Middle School Parents Advisory Council will sponsor its second West Fest carnival. It will be held in the school's parking lot next weekend, Oct. 1-3.

The Sam Pino Amusement Company will provide one thriller-type ride plus five kiddie- and four family rides and 10 games of skill. West Fest will also feature typical carnival food (hamburgers, hot dogs, sausage, fried dough, cotton candy, etc.) Two popular booths will appear again this year: the teacher student "dunk tank," where each will have the opportunity to dunk the other, and Candy World, where everyone's sweet tooth can be satisfied.

Hours for West Fest are as follows: Friday, Oct. 1, 3-11 p.m.; Saturday, Oct. 2, 11 a.m.-11 p.m.; Sunday, Oct. 3, noon-6 p.m.

Instead of paying by the ride, persons going on Sunday may buy a day ticket for $8, good for unlimited rides.

Parking will be available at the adjacent high school. Proceeds will benefit the enrichment fund of West Middle School.

'Lowell celebrates Kerouac!' highlights Kerouac and music Sept. 29-Oct. 3

"Kerouac and Music" will be the theme of the sixth annual "Lowell Celebrates Kerouac!" festival set for Sept. 29 through Oct. 3. Festival features include the awarding of the Jack Kerouac Literary Prize, "beat" tours, movies, discussions, a photo exhibition, concerts, poetry readings and a small press book fair.

This five-day festival takes place annually in Lowell, hometown of the beat-generation poet and novelist. This year's festival will explore connections between the writing of Kerouac and the music he loved, as well as his legacy in the popular music of today.

The "Lowell Celebrates Kerouac!" festival officially kicks off on Wednesday, Sept. 29, with Kerouac Movies – movies about the music he liked best: Bird (based on the life of Charlie Parker) and Straight No Chaser (documentary on Thelonious Monk, produced by Clint Eastwood). The festival continues Thursday and Friday with tours of Kerouac's Lowell, the awarding of the fifth annual Jack Kerouac Literary Prize, a reception for photographer John Suiter and a concert by beat poet Michael McClure and Ray Manzarek, former keyboardist for The Doors.

"Rumors of Kerouac," an exhibit documenting photographer Suiter's search for the Lowell of Kerouac's experience, will be on display at the Boott Gallery, 400 Foot of John St. through Oct. 15. The exhibit features 24 color photographs paired with excerpts from Kerouac's writings.

Saturday's events include an afternoon Mexico City Blues Symposium: a discussion of Kerouac poetry and music with Kerouac biographer Ann Charters, musicologist Sam Charters, poet-performer Michael McClure, Lowell writer Paul Marion and Brian Foye of Middlesex Community College. Additional tours and a small press book fair will run throughout the day. In the evening, the Jimmy Heath Quartet will perform at the University of Massachusetts Lowell Center for the Arts. For ticket information, call 934-4444. The festival concludes on Sunday with tours of Kerouac's Lowell leaving from the National Park Visitor Center and a "Music and Words Open Mike" at The Coffee Mill on Palmer Street.

"Lowell Celebrates Kerouac!" is sponsored by 20 community groups and Lowell National Historical Park.

For more information or tour reservations, contact Lowell National Historical Park, 246 Market St., Lowell, or call 459-1000 or 970-5000.

Andover Choral Society practicing Mozart

The Andover Choral Society continues its celebrations of music. The opportunity to join in on this season's work remains open to musical students and adults.

Tryouts are not required. The group accepts members interested in and committed to the fine art and expression of choral work. A variety of classical pieces are studied and performed.

The group is working on intricate choice classes from Mozart and has scheduled a January performance.

The group is directed by Allen Coombs, a vocal instructor known locally and in the metropolitan Boston area as a director and vocalist with various organizations. Rehearsals are on Mondays at Christ Church at 7:20 p.m.

MRT opens its 15th season tomorrow night

Merrimack Repertory Theatre in Lowell opens its 15th anniversary season with the award-winning Sondheim musical A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. Performances run Sept. 24-Oct. 16, Wednesdays-Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 7.

For information and reservations, call the MRT box office at 454-3926.

Andover AMC has two hikes, each 3 miles

The Andover Appalachian Mountain Club will offer the public a choice of two free three-mile hikes on Sunday, Sept. 26.

One hike will be through Deer Jump Reservation along the Merrimack River. Take Exit 45 (River Road) from I-93 in Andover west for 0.5 mile to Brundrett Avenue on the right.

Meet leader Bob Dyer at the end of the street at 1:30 p.m.

The second walk will be along the shore of Lake Cochichewick and over Weir Hill in North Andover.

Meet leader Mike Gorianski of North Andover at the "Trustees of Reservations" sign on Stevens Street at 1:30 p.m.

Shadow Facts*, photography by Jeremy Barnard, is on exhibit through Oct. 24 at Merrimack College, with an opening reception Sunday at 2 p.m.

Delineated by shadows, real and figurative

Georgetown photographer is on exhibit at Merrimack

An exhibition of black-and-white photographs of Jeremy Barnard will be held at Merrimack College's McQuade Library Art Gallery through Oct. 24.

Entitled "Shadow Facts," the exhibit includes photos whose subjects are delineated by shadows, both actual and figurative.

Although Mr. Barnard occasionally works in color, he prefers black and white. During the last 25 years, he has amassed more than 40,000 black-and-white images. His photography, he says, represents continuing self-discovery. "My work gives no clue about where I'm going or what I will become but, like the concentric rings of a tree, it gives a clear picture of where I've been and what I am."

The Georgetown resident regards himself as a landscape and nature photographer. He has exhibited throughout New England and has shown his work most recently at Light Sources Gallery in Boston and the art gallery of Newburyport's Firehouse Center. A Maine gallery recently featured his work in "Eye on the Coast."

An opening reception for the artist will be held at the gallery Sunday, Sept. 26, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday 1 to 5 p.m.

Admission is free. The gallery is wheelchair-accessible.

NECS holds auditions

The New England Classical Singers will hold auditions for tenors and basses Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the band room at North Andover High School on Osgood Street, North Andover.

This season will feature works by Handel, Bach, Thompson, Vaughn, Williams and others.

THE REAL ESTATE CORNER

with Jean Fitzgerald & Pamela Lebowitz

LOW STRESS REAL ESTATE SALES

Whether you are buying or selling, making a move gets high marks on the stress scale. Not only are huge amounts of money involved, but there is a lot that can go wrong.

A good Realtor will work hard to minimize the stress in your move. We monitor the progress of our client's loan application and make sure that the paperwork is being handled properly. We remind sellers about any repairs that are to be made before the closing. We also try to help both parties coordinate the closing and their moves to give the sellers time to be out of the house before the buyer's moving van arrives. We will explain how to ensure a smooth transition with utility companies to make sure final meter readings have been arranged by the sellers and new accounts have been set up for the buyers. We can help you be prepared in order to avoid potential problems and make your closing as easy and free of stress as possible.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Century 21 Carriage House. Call us at 475-1243, or stop by our office at 10 High Street.

St. Augustine's to hold revival

St. Augustine's Parish Community invites everyone to renew, revive and energize with Grayson Warren Brown Monday-Wednesday, Oct. 4-6, at 7 p.m.

According to a statement issued by the church, "For more than 20 years Grayson Warren Brown has been inspiring, reviving and enlightening parish communities, conventions and conference audiences throughout the country. He has challenged countless individuals through parish missions to reach beyond the confines of their own spiritual borders to bring forth God's goodness within their lives.

"Grayson's dedication to social justice is evidenced in his writing, his music and his life, and is equaled only by his love of scripture.

"Grayson's life-giving interpretation of scripture will waken you to break open the Word."

St. Augustine Church is located at 43 Essex St.

BrookRidge Community Church has fifth anniversary

Five years ago AT&T executive William Watson retired and started a church in Andover. Mr. Watson wanted to build a church that met peoples' need, and was contemporary and relevant to life in the 21st century. Beginning with several other couples, Mr. Watson has continued his dream and his calling "to reach the unchurched and deliver the good news of God's love to the Andover community," according to a statement from the church.

This Sunday, Sept. 26, BrookRidge Community Church will celebrate its fifth anniversary.

The public is invited to join the celebration at 10:30 a.m. at West Elementary School on Beacon Street. This anniversary service will feature special contemporary music, an original drama presentation, worship singing and an interpretive dance of praise.

BrookRidge offers weekly Bible teaching with a full complement of the performance arts. This Sunday's message will revolve around how "You Matter to God." For more information, call 682-0302.

Doll exhibit graces Historical Society

"Beautiful and Beloved: A Selection of Dolls" will open at the Andover Historical Society this Tuesday, Sept. 28, at noon with a gallery talk by Leslie Costello, museum intern.

The show exhibits 19th and 20th-century dolls with brief historical text explaining the different types of dolls: wood, papier maché, bisque and china. Some of the dolls have come to the society as the donors' favorites. They have names and show signs of well-worn love. Other dolls have a special charm because of a pretty face, a beautiful dress or an interesting hair style. Each doll is one-of-a-kind.

The walking doll or "autoperipatetikos," dated July 15, 1862, donated by Mrs. E. Dudley Freeman, is a French treasure complete with the box that she was originally marketed in. She has blue eyes painted on her china face and her costume of ivory silk with lace trim is original and quite fashionable for the time.

Ms. Costello graduated from Bradford College in May 1993. In the spring of 1992 she was an intern at the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy, where she curated a show of women artists, "A Show of One's Own," in May.

"Beautiful and Beloved: A Selection of Dolls" will continue to be exhibited through mid-January 1994.

The gallery talk is part of the Andover Historical Society's noon-time programs. Participants bring their lunch; lemonade and cookies are provided. There is a $1 admission charge.

Police log

and compliance with, the law.

Police-log issues debated between the press and the Andover department include reporting of information on juveniles involved in crimes, the printing of two separate logs, one for the department's use and one for the public and the press, and what information should be included in the log.

Andover's log and the law

Andover's police log had 22,022 incidents recorded in 1992, and 16,889 as of Sept. 10 this year. There were 2,149 incidents recorded in the month of August alone.

Parking tickets and resident house checks are not included in the log.

"I think our log is better than most. It provides accurate up-to-date information," Sgt. Brian Pattullo, keeper of the records for Andover police, said last week. "As far as I'm concerned, I would say it's one of the top logs."

State law requires that:

"Each police department...shall make, keep and maintain a daily log, written in a form that can be easily understood, recording, in chronological order, all responses to valid complaints received, crimes reported, the names, addresses of persons arrested and the charges against such persons arrested. All entries in said daily logs shall, unless otherwise provided in law, be public records available without charge to the public during regular business hours and at all other reasonable times."

The Andover Police Department is constantly weighing the right to privacy versus the public's right to know in deciding what information should be public, but Sgt. Pattullo works on the presumption that everything is public unless otherwise protected by law.

Items the Andover police department considers confidential and therefore are omitted from the log include juveniles' names and addresses, names and addresses of rape victims, and incidents still under investigation, according to Sgt. Pattullo.

But the name of a juvenile who has been arrested "can be released at the discretion of the custodian," he said.

If a juvenile is suspected of involvement in a murder or another serious crime, the police would have no problem with releasing his or her name. But if a juvenile were picked up for possession of alcohol, the public's need to know is diminished, he said.

"Probably the negative effect that could have on the juvenile would outweigh the benefit to the public," Sgt. Pattullo said.

Rape reporting

According to Robert Bender, assistant Essex County district attorney, a statute in the same chapter of the state law that requires keeping a police log public, protects confidentiality of rape reports.

"All reports of rape and sexual assault or attempts to commit such offenses, and all conversations between officers and victims of said offenses, shall not be public reports and shall be maintained by the police departments in a manner which will assure their confidentiality," the law states.

But Sgt. Pattullo said police still must make a judgment call, and what is made public concerning rape reports depends on the situation.

If a rape occurred overnight in Andover, "We would provide you with the basic information," Sgt. Pattullo said.

Making public the fact that the rape occurred, and some of the circumstances surrounding the incident might be necessary, or at least prudent, for public safety, he said. But the victim's name and address would be withheld, and probably the name of the accused would be withheld until it was made public in court, the sergeant said.

A rape report that might not be made public would include a "stale" rape report, one that is being made a great deal of time after the fact.

"Does it benefit anyone to know that seven years ago there was a potential or alleged rape in town?" Sgt. Pattullo asked.

The public's right to know is again diminished, "so that would be withheld," the sergeant said.

That is what happened on Aug. 10 when the rape report was omitted from the public log. The report involved a possible sexual assault that allegedly occurred five or more years earlier, according to Sgt. Pattullo.

Current practice is to withhold such an incident from the log. Sgt. Pattullo said he will look into whether a limited description of the incident could be left in the log, so that the public would know the nature of the incident, if not the details.

"That might be something I can work on with the police log," Sgt. Pattullo said.

"Our opinion is, and the chief's opinion is, we will provide as much information to the public (as possible) without jeopardizing the ongoing investigation, the rights of the victim or the rights of the accused," as is governed by state law, Sgt. Pattullo said.

Gray line

But there is enough of a "gray line" regarding what the public has a right to know and what should be confidential that the state attorney general recently asked his office to formulate a legal opinion relative to police departments' and district attorneys' responsibilities under the law.

At a seminar sponsored by the Massachusetts Bar Association in August, Jack Authelet, of Media Publications in Foxboro and editor of the bulletin for New England Press Association, brought the issue to the attention of Diane S. Juliar, assistant attorney general.

Mr. Authelet said the problem is two-fold: The Department of Public Safety has been giving misinformation to district attorneys and police chiefs so that they are misinformed about their responsibilities in keeping public records; and journalists are uninformed about the public's rights to that information.

"That makes for a very bad situation. It makes for inadequate reporting of police matters," Mr. Authelet said this week.

Following that seminar, Attorney General Scott Harshbarger approved the formulation of the legal opinion and its dissemination to district attorneys and police chiefs as a priority project, according to Mr. Authelet.

"They were hoping to have it sometime in October," he said.

Two logs

Thanks to the integration of computers into police work, a couple of clicks on the keyboard will now allow an officer to print complete details of an incident, including personal information on suspects, victims and witnesses, and the complete officer's report. In printing the police log, the challenge for the department is to program the computer to print out all the pertinent public information, while editing out what the department chooses not to publish. For this reason, two separate logs are maintained by the Andover Police Department – an "internal log" for officers to monitor crime activity, and the "press log," which is available to the public.

The internal log actually has less details on incidents than the press log, according to Sgt. Pattullo.

"It is a log that is utilized by our officers to make them aware of what is occurring in the town so we can adequately deter crime," the sergeant said. "The only difference with it is the items that are withheld from the press log under the exemptions."

The press log has more details regarding incidents, such as names and addresses of those arrested, than the internal log, the sergeant said.

"This only has dispatchers' remarks," he said of the internal log.

Making changes

For a time, the press log didn't include the incident numbers assigned to each log entry by the department, or the street numbers where incidents occurred. After requests for this information by the press, those items were added, but much more was involved than just pushing a button.

The software used to print the two police logs is shared by several area departments and making a change to the program, such as putting the incident and street numbers in the log, required a presentation by Sgt. Pattullo to the users group to convince members the changes were necessary. Several departments don't include as much information in their logs as Andover does and would prefer to reveal less rather than more, the sergeant said.

The group agreed to change the software so the incident and street numbers can be included, but only through a menu driven request, which requires the dispatcher printing the log to specifically select that information for it to be printed. Dispatchers then had to be trained to accommodate the changes.

Omissions from the log

Every motorist stop, suspicious activity call, complaint, accident report and arrest is assigned an incident number. Once generated and coded as to the type of incident involved, that incident cannot be deleted, according to Sgt. Pattullo

But an item can be kept from being printed in the press log, either by computer programming or manually. The computer is programmed so that, for instance, personal information on arrested juveniles, such as name and address, is not printed in the press log. Certain users can also delete individual items from being printed in the log, as a duty lieutenant did to keep the Aug. 10 rape report out of the log, according to Sgt. Pattullo.

Examples of items that are withheld from the press log are:

- Internal affair reports and investigations;
- Active investigations (only selected details would be available.);
- Rape and sexual assault reports and conversations;
- Criminal Offender Record Information;
- Reports of hazardous waste in the work place.

Sgt. Pattullo said he has no idea why hazardous waste in the workplace is not public information, but it is protected by law. Another section of the state law indicates that such information may be related to trade secrets, according to Mr. Bender.

Sgt. Pattullo said rape reports are not only kept from the press and the public, but from other officers as well.

Both the computer and hard-copy files for rapes are locked and sealed and unavailable to anyone but the reporting officer, the police prosecutor and the keeper of the records. Each time such a record is opened, the date, time and information on who opened the file is recorded.

Survey shows local teens want a youth council

And now it looks like the youth council will be a reality.

Dr. Larry Larsen, a selectman and child psychologist who became involved in the teen series last June, met yesterday, Wednesday, with others involved in the series and who served on the committee that put together the survey, to start selection of members to serve on the teen council.

Dr. Larsen and Ruby Easton, chairwoman of the guidance department at Andover High School, and Stacey Jenkins, student representative who helped coordinate the survey, began forming "an ad hoc nominating committee to put together an original group to start," Dr. Larsen said Wednesday morning.

They are thinking of including four adults and six or seven teens on the council. The three are going to meet with Mark McQuillan, school superintendent, to see how this council can fit in with other groups already working in the schools, and they hope the council will serve as a coordinator for those groups.

"The youth council would be not only an originator of programs, but also ... a voice for young people and their concerns," Dr. Larsen said.

The youth council would "inspire and empower" other groups that are already doing things for and with young people, Dr. Larsen said. The exact mission of the council is still being formulated, he said.

The original members will probably be high school-age students, "but that is something we're going to have to talk about," Dr. Larsen said. But he said it will be a representative group.

"This will be a group that will survey the constituency," he said. "It's got a real future and, if the young people take it seriously, I think it might go. But it's up to them."

The series and survey

The Andover for Teens series asked teens, "How is it going for you here?" and asked what they wanted available to them in town. As part of the series, the Townsman hosted a number of meetings with several high school students and interested adults, which gave birth to the idea of forming a teen council to serve as a vehicle to help teens address problems and attain programs or facilities they'd like available here in town.

The discussions also gave birth to a work group of youths and adults whose charge it was to put together the survey aimed at compiling a comprehensive list of teens' wants and needs. It also managed to capture a sampling of their attitudes.

Who responded?

With the cooperation of the Andover schools, the survey was given to students in both Doherty and West middle schools, grades 6-8, and grades 9 and 11 at the High School at the end of June just before school was let out for summer. A total 1,418 students, of the roughly 2,035 students in grades 6 -11, completed the survey. Ages ranged from 11-17 years old, with the possibility of a few exceptions younger or older. The students consisted of the schools' general population mix, and no effort was made here to tabulate the gender of respondents.

> 'I'm thrilled. What it confirms in my own mind is that the deepest need of people is to be needed.'
> Dr. Larry Larsen, selectmen

The survey consisted of 34 questions, 31 that required "yes" or "no" answers, and three asking for the teens' own ideas.

Results were compiled throughout the summer on "rainy days" by a combination of Our Town kids, youths employed by the town this summer, according to Peg Campbell, program coordinator at the Department of Community Services who oversaw the tabulation effort.

"I stressed the importance of accuracy and am proud of the job the kids did," Ms. Campbell said in handing over the results to the Townsman.

For the majority of questions, 1-31, students had the option of answering "Yes," "No" or "No Opinion." Unanswered questions were also tabulated.

This summary of the results was then compiled by the Townsman.

Youth council

A majority of the respondents, 728 of the 1,418, or 51 percent, favored creation of a youth council. High School students tended to be more in favor of the council, 66 percent, than middle school students.

Only 69 teens said they didn't think the town should have a youth council. Another 482 had no opinion and 139 did not answer the question.

About one quarter, 333 students, said they would be interested in serving on a youth council, while 684 said they would not be interested. But they listed hundreds of names of other teens they thought would be good choices to serve on such a council.

Top 10 desired activities

Questions 2 through 22 were responses to the question, "If the following activities were available, would you attend or be interested?"

The most popular activity chosen was day trips, with 1,151, about 81 percent, in favor of having them available.

Dances were the second most popular activity, with 1,051 in favor, followed by weekend trips, with 992 affirmatives.

Part-time employment opportunities was next with 986. A majority of students, 969, wanted boating activities available and 949 wanted swimming.

Open gym received 942 votes, intramural night sports 911, and 764 wanted to be able to view recently-released PG movies.

Rounding out the top 10 most popular activities was exchange programs with other schools, with 705 votes, still about 50 percent of the respondents.

Aiding elders and children

One response that may surprise some people was that 577 students, nearly 41 percent, want to be involved in activities "that assist the elderly or younger children."

"I'm thrilled," Dr. Larsen said on hearing that result. "What it confirms in my own mind is that the deepest need of people is to be needed."

A sobering 379 respondents, 27 percent, were not interested in assisting elders or children and the rest either had no opinion or did not answer the question.

Dr. Larsen said he is concerned with the number that said they were not interested in such activities, but that a closer look at the age and gender of those respondents would tell more about those answers.

Having the weight room at the High School open after hours was favored by 635 students.

Summer stock theater was popular with 543 votes in favor of it. Having activities held at neutral spaces sponsored by local groups, not in schools, received 538 votes, but activities sponsored by local churches and community groups received only 349 votes.

Ultimate frisbee had 527 votes.

A teen council-sponsored coffee house received 495 votes, while special interest clubs, such as chess and photography clubs, had 457 votes.

Somewhat surprisingly, after-school access to computers came in near the bottom of the list, 356 votes, and only 305 teens were in favor of building a skateboard park.

Bottoming out on the list were enrichment courses, such as computer or language courses, offered at night. Only 288 favored such courses.

Teen center

Only 345 students thought a single center for teens would attract most of their peers, while most respondents, 1,194, more than 84 percent, said teens need a variety of places to go and things to do.

Cost is a factor

Cost is a factor in deciding whether teens attend or take part in an activity, according to 896 respondents, 63 percent. Transportation is a problem for 480 of the teens.

Surely you jest

Lest anyone think all the teenagers answered the survey completely seriously, here are a few additional suggestions teens had for activities that they'd like to have available to them:

- Ninja reindeer killfest '93 (Doherty, grade 6).
- Bungee jumping and sky diving (Doherty, grade 7).
- Pig fighting, girls, some unmentionables and Jucuzzis (West, grade 7).
- Unmentionables, dead people, more unmentionables (West, grade 8).
- Cool parties, wild parties, unmentionables, cow tipping, coed showers, trips to Europe, mud wrestling, human chess, strip shows, gun target practice, unsupervised orgies, cliff hanging, sky diving, bungee jumping, open bar and slot machines (AHS, grade 9).

There were not any entries in grades 10 and 11 like the above.

Whether friends are attending an activity plays a role for 690 teens in deciding whether they will attend an activity.

Parents interest

A minimal 382 teens said they thought their parents would help plan activities for teens, while 602 said they thought their parents would not get involved.

Similarly, 225 said their parents would help supervise activities while 760 said they didn't think their parents would help.

The kids were split on whether parents would help finance teen activities, 474 saying they would and 468 saying that their parents would not help out financially.

A variety of ideas

The last two questions on the survey asked what activities other than the ones specified in questions 2-22, they would like available, and what activities and facilities they would like in a teen center, should one be created. The responses are quite varied and have not been systematically tabulated, but some popular activities area apparent.

Pool tables, ping-pong and arcade games were popular, along with sports, such as basketball games and swimming. Music, dancing and movies also brought in several votes.

Drug-, alcohol- and smoke-free space was also popular, and several respondents said they would want a teen center to be drug, alcohol and smoke free, or at least to have a smoke free area.

The activities wanted for the teen center were dominated by movies, games, television, music and dances.

School officials work out details of mandated school councils

By Neil Fater

The Education Reform Act has led to a great deal of eye-rolling from school officials across Massachusetts during the last few months. After Tuesday night's meeting, however, members of the Andover School Committee rolled up their sleeves instead and provided a tentative framework for individual school councils, one of the required changes under the reforms.

"We're being whipped and beaten not because we haven't done a good job, but because other systems haven't done a good job," said Chairperson Susan Dalton, about the required reforms. Though committee members did express displeasure with the overall reform package, councils were not referred to as a bad idea, because they are not "an effort to re-invent the wheel."

"We have a responsibility to revisit all of our policies," said Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools. "Some age better than others."

Under the likely framework proposed at the late-night work session Tuesday, each school would have its own school council, with the principal as a potentially non-voting co-chairperson. Under state guidelines, there are to be three groups or pools from which members should be chosen: teachers, parents, and others. [See graphic at right.] The number of teachers on the council must be equal to the number of parents, and the number of "other" members must never exceed 50 percent of the council.

Working within those guidelines the School Committee has control over the size and decision-making process of the councils. Following Tuesday night's workshop it appeared likely the councils would have 11 to 13 members, with an odd number preferable to avoid a deadlock. The terms for the council members will probably be staggered so that all members are not up for re-election simultaneously. (Whether council members will be appointed or elected has not been settled.)

Open, monthly meetings would be likely with a majority vote, rather than a consensus, sending recommendations to the principal for acceptance or rejection. The principal will have a voice on the council, but not necessarily a vote, as he or she holds ultimate veto power. In this way, the councils work much like the current high school student government since all proposals are subject to the principal's discretion.

"The principal is the one responsible for the outcome of the product," said committee member Richard Muller. "He has to have more power."

The council will make recommendations to the principal in such areas as maintenance, budget review and educational needs, but some issues will still be entirely under the control of school officials. Through subcommittees and with a member of the parent-teacher organization likely on the council, the proposed council will have a working relationship with and hear the requests of the PTO.

Dr. McQuillan is expected to provide a template of the suggested composition by Friday, and the committee will re-open discussion at the agenda-packed Oct. 5 meeting.

Oct. 5 School Committee agenda promises action, discussion, more

By Neil Fater

There were some tired eyes when the School Committee finally adjourned close to midnight Tuesday. But those eyes haven't seen anything yet, as the Oct. 5 meeting of the School Committee looks like it will attract town wide attention and cover a number of significant issues.

Among the issues to be discussed and potentially acted upon are the availability of condoms in the high school to prevent the spread of the AIDS virus, the proper form that the body of the soon-to-be-formed school councils should take, and the inclusion and mainstreaming of students within the schools.

"And you ain't seen nothing yet," said Chairperson Susan Dalton, to the committee during a workshop following the Tuesday meeting. "We are going to drown in a couple of these."

The School Committee is facing a full load already and has yet to be able to address what may be the largest issue on their agenda, the school construction project. Negotiations with the teachers and the setting of performance standards for the teachers are other issues on their collective, and for-now gloomily hectic, horizon.

Though the condom availability issue may get the greatest amount of attention from residents, members of the committee hope to avoid having another forum, in addition to the one earlier this week which they lauded.

Mainstreaming

One issue that could originate lively committee discussion is the mainstreaming of students. The committee discussed meshing and tracking at Tuesday's meeting to get the issues in the open, but put off more in-depth discussion for the Oct. 5 meeting.

"It's better to speak now and to try to get the issues on the table," said Ms. Dalton. "I do not want to think that any of the meshing is done to keep the staff down."

A concern of the committee had been to keep the student-teacher ratio as low as possible, but not if the result is inferior education.

"I was quite concerned to see that we had meshed some levels," said committee member Richard Muller Tuesday. "I'm a little bit concerned about some of the things we might be doing. I think this is the first time we are meshing levels to keep class sizes at a reasonable level."

Timothy Thomas, principal of the high school, acknowledged that that twos and threes, which are supposed levels of students, have never been combined in science classes before.

AHS students propose new academic standards

By Neil Fater

With the School Committee dealing with a full agenda, high school student government members got the jump on their elders and attempted to take control of their own education Tuesday night.

Together with high school Principal Timothy Thomas, senior Max Dawson and Cheryl Battles, high school representative to the School Committee, proposed a guideline by which students would be promoted from grade to grade.

Teens would have to at least meet the proposed minimum standards in order to move up with their classmates to the next grade level's home room, the room in which students spend the first 10 minutes of every day.

"You beat us to the punch and I'm glad you did," said Chairperson Susan Dalton. "It's much more effective coming from you."

Under the proposal, passed by the student government on Jan. 29, 1993 without opposition, and approved by Mr. Thomas on Feb. 12, the students would have to pass a minimum number of credits to move to the next year. For a freshman to become a sophomore, the student would have had to pass three credits that year; to move up each successive year, a student would need six credits each year thereafter. For a sophomore to become a junior, the student must have passed eight credits and would again need six passing credits to move up each successive year. A junior must have 14 credits to move up and would need to pass six credits during senior year to graduate.

"(The proposal)'s got a lot of merit and it's very forward thinking," said Superintendent Mark McQuillan.

Mr. Thomas said that often a 14-year-old won't care whether or not he graduates in 1997 or 1998, because it seems so far away. "But to say that next September they're not going to move with their class, I think it's a great incentive." Mr. Thomas said he thought the proposal might encourage some students who had fallen behind to take summer school to keep up with their classmates.

According to the student representatives, a key element of the proposal is that students will know whether they are on schedule to graduate at the end of every year. This will avoid problems resulting from the surprise often shown when a student is informed that he or she will not graduate or move up with their class.

"As far as freshmen needing structure, I didn't find out (about college requirements) until junior year," said Ms. Battles. "It goes by very quickly and you have to make the most of it while you're here."

The committee will need to align this proposal with the existing requirements, and may toughen the promotion guidelines.

"I will rewrite the policy with your cooperation," said Dr. McQuillan. The rewritten proposal would be sent back to the student government to elicit a response.

Public's right to know

We are encouraged by our research into the Andover Police Department's police log, which turned up what we think is a healthy attitude toward the public's right to know.

Sometimes the problem between police and the press is lack of trust. The police can be suspicious of the press and especially of reporters' and editors' judgment. Members of the press sometimes believe the police withhold too much information from the public.

Sgt. Brian Pattullo, keeper of the records for Andover police, tells us that if a rape were committed overnight in Andover, "We would provide you with the basic information." That is good news.

Sometimes Andover residents call the newspaper and ask that a certain item be omitted from the police log. We don't and won't do that, even if the information is about a person who works here.

It is the Townsman's policy to omit the name of juveniles – those 16 and under – from the log and from most stories. And it is this newspaper's policy usually to omit the names of victims.

However, if a house were robbed, the newspaper would include the incident and the street where the robbery occurred. The rest of the people on that street have a right to know. They may now want to lock their doors, for instance. The paper can warn a neighborhood without revealing the name of the victim, in that case.

We don't agree with the law that says reports of hazardous waste in the workplace is not public information. On the contrary, that seems a clear example of information the public needs to know. The district attorney's office says that hazardous waste reports may be related to trade secrets. That doesn't compute with us.

Newspapers are in the business of reporting on what occurs in the community. It is the public's business to decide what it will do with the information. The public's right to know can usually be accommodated, even when withholding victims' names.

Town Clerk Randy Hanson swears in Dave Reilly, the town's new treasurer/collector, at a recent ceremony at town offices.

Learning to juggle time turns into an asset

By Susan Wilner

At the end of each school year I have the habit of taking stock. Not in a formal way really with lists of accomplishments versus the down side of what still lies unfinished. It's more a mental task of trying to evaluate in some way where I have been and where I would like to go.

This year I treated myself to a reprieve from my daily responsibilities and "took stock" as part of a trip to Europe to visit a friend. I traveled alone without my family.

OK, I was exhausted after a year of balancing a job, home, children's music lessons, Hebrew school, all the endless car pools. In all honesty, I have always harbored some resentment at the fragmentation of my life, the seeming inability to have hours or even one hour of concentrated time at my disposal to pursue my own interests, be they professional or otherwise. I find the constant interruptions depleting, the juggling of a multitude of tasks tiring but necessary.

'The more I read, the more intrigued I became with the notion of the unique ways in which women by virtue of their multiple roles in society are equipped to problem-solve in the work place and in the community at large.'

As part of my recuperation I read Mary Catherine Bateson's book Composing a Life. Ms. Bateson makes an argument for the significant productivity, even moments of brilliance, that can evolve from the skills developed through the female "juggling" dilemma.

At first suggestion I had a sneaky suspicion that Ms. Bateson was a man in disguise trying to placate women, convince them their lot was not as inferior as all that.

However, the more I read, the more intrigued I became with the notion of the unique ways in which women by virtue of their multiple roles in society are equipped to problem-solve in the work place and in the community at large.

It is the very multiplicity and ambiguity of women's lives that can lead to affirmation of the complexity of the whole and protects against over simplistic solutions rising from narrower viewpoints. Granted women have a long way to go in achieving equality.

However, if we do not recognize our own unique perspectives and develop ways to use it effectively at work and in the community, we can hardly expect others to. "Taking stock" this year has included a small but sincere commitment to viewing the "juggler" as a positive, valuable role model.

Parent says bus fee is unfair

Editor, Townsman:

I was quite upset with School Committee member Susan Jenkins' attitude towards the bus fees (Sept. 9 Townsman, "Busing costs are down, but bus fees stay same," page 1.)

I am a parent of a middle school student. This is the second year that I have paid the $210 fee. My understanding last year, when the fee was introduced, was this fee was to cover the cost of the bus transportation not reimbursed by the state. I have since learned that in Andover the cost last year for bus transportation was $190/student. This means that last year we were overcharged by $20. This year the bid and hence the cost of the transportation is less than last year. Yet the fee has not been reduced.

Ms. Jenkins states that the bus fee "is an indirect tax." According to this article it appears that Ms. Jenkins will continue to vote for a bus fee, which is being used to support other programs, until her priorities are restored. I do not question Ms. Jenkins' priorities or the programs. I question the lack of honesty. It is just not right to charge a fee for transportation to only some parents and then use the money for something else.

As a parent who has paid the bus fee I feel like I am being taken advantage of. We need to demand honesty and fairness from our elected officials. This fee is just wrong.

Tolerance in our children

Editor, Townsman:

We are writing to commend the school administrators who recently attended the multi-community forum on respecting religious differences in the schools. The forum sought to facilitate the ongoing development of a positive and open dialogue between the community and school leaders on this delicate and important subject.

This effort was clearly furthered by the attendance of Mark McQuillan, superintendent of the Andover schools; Tim Thomas, principal of Andover High School; Donald McNemar, headmaster of Phillips Academy; and representatives from Haverhill, Methuen, Chelmsford, North Andover and area private schools.

As Dr. McQuillan commented and as reiterated by Rabbi Robert Goldstein of Temple Emanuel, the parents and school staff need to continuously communicate with each other if we are to succeed in fostering respect and understanding in a multi-religious community.

It is important to our children and our nation that the schools take an active and positive role in promoting tolerance between children of different cultures and backgrounds. We believe that one of the strengths of our community is its multi-cultural diversity.

This diversity was exemplified to us by a visit to South School a few years ago. Graphs boldly showed that after Massachusetts, more children in the class were born in foreign countries than in all other states combined. This exposure to such a geographically diverse student body can only broaden our children's understanding of our world.

Yet, as Kerry Costello, an Andover teacher and board member of the Massachusetts Teacher Association, related through an example from her own teaching experience, even in Andover tolerance of differences between our students needs to be taught and taught again. We need to take all steps necessary to ensure that no student be placed in the untenable and unacceptable position of choosing between following their religious practices or pursuing their academic responsibilities. Surely, as a community we can accommodate both demands.

Finally, we wish to express our appreciation to the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel and the Merrimack Valley Jewish Federation, joint participants in developing forum, for their valuable contribution. On behalf of our membership, B'nai B'rith women shall continue to support and encourage school and community efforts towards achieving open communication and multi-religious tolerance.

He says no to this meeting

Editor, Townsman:

With my children grown up, I rarely visit a School Committee meeting. And attending Monday night's report from the AIDs committee left me feeling I had spent two hours in la-la land.

It gradually came out that the committee was apologetic about the validity of their statistics, since their sampling was flawed, and the data were not internally consistent. Inaccurate statistics are probably worse than none at all, since they give an illusion of accuracy.

After the meeting, I asked an expert, "if there are any cases of AIDS or HIV positives now or ever in the Andover schools?" Shock and horror! "That is confidential and I couldn't tell you if I knew, but I don't know."

According to the Andover health officer this is the greatest epidemic in the history of the world and we can't impart even the simplest facts.

It was equally amazing to hear a roomful of adults assert that teen-agers are just waiting to hear the powerful message "just say no to sex." The pro-condomites making sure to point out that the school program will emphasize that no sex is best (applause). The anti-condomites say that the only good sex is no sex. (thunderous applause).

But I'm wrong... These teenagers aren't convinced at all and are just waiting for a condom so that they can engage in rampant sex. And adult after adult rises to intone that the only safe sex is no sex and that condoms fail and that actually birth control causes pregnancy... and black is white and up is down.

Our whole lives are spent living with probabilities. People who can't use elevators because of fear are seen as crippled. How do you avoid choking on steak? "Just say no to steak. The only good steak is no steak." Worried about crossing the street? "Just say no to street crossing." Bathtubs scare you? "Just say no to baths and especially remember to not pull the plug."

Half the room is "waiting for Godot" and the other half is worried that their children might discover sex. ("You have to get to them early or they will try it and like it and do it again.") We will be lucky if we don't leave a generation of emotional cripples.

As I exited the library, I saw a religious lighting his pipe. Obviously he missed the message "just say no to tobacco."

Animal Control Officer Wayne Nader picked up six tiny kittens found abandoned in a potato chip box at the corner of Haggetts Pond Road and Bailey Road by a tree crew working there. Anyone who knows anything about the incident, or anyone who would like to adopt a kitten should call Andover Animal Hospital at 475-3600. Also available for adoption at the hospital are a male Great Dane-greyhound mix, and a 14-month-old labrador that is being given away because its owner is moving away.

DOWN THE YEARS

100 Years Ago: Friday, Sept. 29, 1893

George B. Smart & Co. of Lawrence are putting in the heating apparatus at the Abbot Village school house. It is to be a system of hot air.

There are now only sixteen inmates at the Almshouse, the smallest number known for years.

Dixon, the colored champion feather-weight pugilist, who won his fight with Smith, Monday night, did his training at Bellevue Grove, Haggetts Pond and his prime condition is said to have been the result of the excellent West Parish climate and pure air.

Another joint meeting of the Boards of Selectmen and the School Committee to elect successors to Prof. Graves and Mrs. Cutler will be held at the Town House, Friday evening, Oct. 6.

There is said to be trouble in the vicinity of Prospect Hill Sundays caused by gunners who are not at all particular as to what they do. The police will be looking after these fellows.

50 Years Ago: Sept. 23, 1943

Probably no drive for funds has ever wakened the enthusiasm that has been shown towards The War Loan, now in its second week here. During the past week large army show has been given to the Memorial auditorium, and yesterday a group of American heroes made a whirlwind tour of the local war plants which awakened widespread enthusiasm everywhere.

A light but cocky Punchard eleven will take the field at 2:30 Saturday in the opening game of the local season, against Concord high at the local playstead. This year's squad averages 150 pounds in line and backfield, though there are a few heavy men on the club. The atti-

AHS swimmers stun Lowell

By Rick Harrison

With spritual leader and Co-Captain Mindy Fox, sophomore sensation Diana Liberty and multi-talented Tracie Grant leading the way, the Andover High girls swim team produced an electrifying 95-91 season-opening upset dual meet victory over stunned Lowell High at the Greater Lawrence Regional Vo-Tech pool.

The meet came down to the final event with the Lady Warriors clinging to a slim two-point advantage (87-85) over the favored Red Raiders.

"We had to win the 400 freestyle relay to clinch the meet," said Coach Marilyn Fitzgerald.

Win it they did as Meghan Donahue, Fox, Grant and Liberty touched in a State Meet qualifying time of 3:59.59. Lowell was slightly less than two seconds behind in 4:01.72.

"I made a last-minute switch in personnel for the race, which I rarely ever do," conceded Coach Fitzgerald. "Mindy (Fox) was having the meet of her life, with two personal-bests and a Sectional Meet qualifying effort earlier (in the 100 free and 200 IM). Her adrenalin was flowing, she was flying and I just knew she would come up with a big performance.

"Tracie (Grant) swam an excellent third leg and gave Diana (Liberty), who had to swim against Lowell's top freestyler (Melissa Burns), a good lead. I'm just glad the pool wasn't 10 feet longer because I don't know what would have happened. Melissa was closing the gap.

"However, Diana is a State champ and a fantastic meet performer. I'd never bet against her in any event," added Fitzgerald.

Liberty awesome

Miss Liberty, a nationally-ranked distance swimmer who had already won two individual events (200 IM and 500 free) in State Meet qualifying times, held off the fast-finishing Burns to nail down the victory.

"The girls pointed out afterward that we had a freshman (Donahue), sophomore (Liberty), junior (Grant) and senior (Fox) on that relay," said Coach Fitzgerald.

"And the place was going crazy. We haven't had that big a crowd in years. A lot of the football players were there cheering the girls on, and I credit the attendance to our two captains (Fox and Whitney Bates). They're very lively, personable young ladies and they were talking up the meet all week in school.

"It was the first swim meet many of the fans had seen, and a lot said they'd come back. We'll just have to wait and see if they're true to their word."

Andover swimmers placed first in eight of the 12 events, and the Lady Warriors also swept the diving competition.

There were five State Meet qualifying and four Sectional Meet qualifying performances.

"I'm thrilled that the girls are turning in these times so early," noted Coach Fitzgerald. "We should qualify three or four more for States this year than we did last year."

Diana Liberty, the defending State champion in the 500 yard freestyle, won her specialty against Lowell in 5:21.40 and added a first place in the 200 individual medley with a 2:17.85 clocking.

Tracie Grant also clicked off a pair of first-place finishes, posting State Meet qualifying times in both the 200 free (2:07.90) and 100 butterfly (1:03.34).

Senior Ronit Shteiyer placed first in the 100 breaststroke with a swift Sectional Meet qualifying time of 1:18.44.

Divers sweep

The sweep of the diving was accomplished by junior winner Joan Sunderland with 155 points, junior runnerup Lisa Cincotta (150.15 points) and senior third place finisher Kerry Brady (146.60).

"I knew we would need a big lead going into the backstroke and breaststroke, where Lowell is strong, and we had it," said Coach Fitzgerald.

The Lady Warriors also placed first and third in the opening 200 medley relay.

The first place team consisted of senior Carrie Moran, Shteiyer, Donahue and Liberty (2:07.20), while third place went to the quartet of senior Megan Miller, Fox, sophomore Heather Vanderheiden and senior Katie Lennon (2:10.13).

Andover had a host of third place finishes, including Mindy

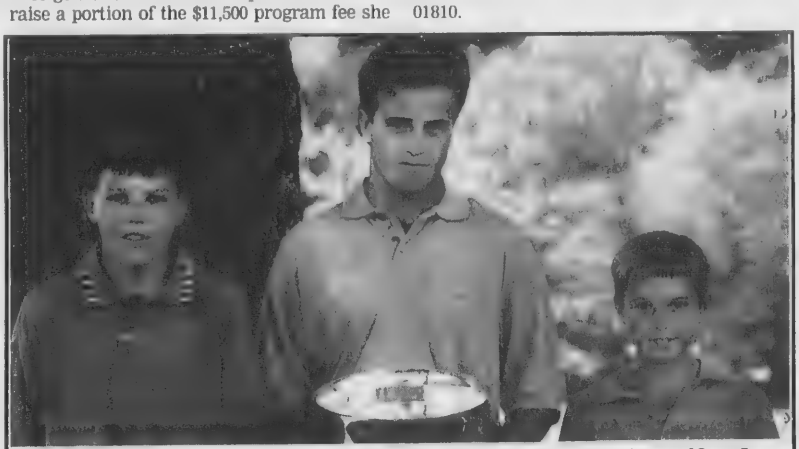
Checks should be made payable to: Diane Beekler's U.W.P. Golf Tournament and sent with entry forms to: Diane Beekler, P.O. Box 1896, Andover, Mass. 01810.



Andover resident George H. Liss, center, and four young aspiring golfers from the Laconia, N.H., area overtook several more experienced teams to win the New Hampshire Pro/Junior Golf championship in August. The group shot a 13 under par for a 56 to secure a place in the playoffs and were tied with Somersworth, N.H., and Abenaqui Country Club of Rye, N.H., during a sudden-death, scramble format. The Laconia group won the tournament. Liss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Liss, is the assistant golf pro at Laconia Country Club. Pictured with him are Bill Crane, left, and Chris Wood, right.

Volleyball team off to rocky start

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls volleyball team, playing with the enthusiasm and carelessness that marks most inexperienced teams, got off to a rocky start in the win-loss column by dropping season-opening Merrimack Valley Conference dual matches to Lowell, Billerica and Lawrence.

The Red Raiders barely squeezed out a 2-1 triumph, winning the deciding game 15-12, while undefeated Billerica and Lawrence both swept past the Lady Warriors 2-0.

"We're a young team and we're going to make mistakes," said Co-Coach George Sullivan. "We're pleased with the progress the girls are making.

"We suffered a key loss when one of our top setters, (junior) Stephanie Casey, turned up at the first match in a walking cast. She's done for the season, while Leah Mason (junior setter-hitter and one of only three returning starters) has been on crutches after spraining one ankle and twisting the other.

"For me it's like a disastrous carryover from last winter's girls basketball season, when we lost our top player (Kerry Hagerty) for most of the year (with mononucleosis).

"It's tough on the kids to lose two quality players like Stephanie and Leah."

The schedule doesn't get any easier as powerhouse Chelmsford was in town yesterday and tomorrow afternoon Andover hosts Haverhill at the Dunn Gym (3:30).

Next week Tewksbury (Monday, away) and Wilmington (Wednesday, home) could provide a brief respite before it's back into the fire on Friday night at Dracut (6:30 p.m.).

Lowell 2
Andover 1

AHS won the first game, 15-11, lost the second, 15-6, and dropped the third, 15-12, as home team Lowell scored the final three points to break a 12-12 tie.

"We've got work to do on our passing, and we aren't getting our usual quota of good hits," said Sullivan. "Last year we averaged in the high 30's to low 40's in hits, but in the opener against Lowell we only had 24.

"We also made an uncharacteristic 21 errors on 72 serve-receptions, and 19 errors on 72 of our own serves."

The Lady Warriors jumped to an early 6-1 lead in the first game and were never really in trouble.

"We were in control the first game, but in the second game our girls started thinking too much," said Coach Sullivan. "It was the same old story of being afraid to make a mistake, and because of that we fell apart."

In the rubber game Lowell bolted to an 8-1 lead, but Andover battled back impressively to 12-12 before the Red Raiders regrouped.

Sophomore Andrea Marvin was 17-for-20 serving and junior veteran Rebecca Goldenberg 9-for-10, while the leading setters were sophomore Cara Rossini and junior Annmarie Hussey.

Impressive hitters were senior Capt. Carrie Green and junior Kim Daher.

The Indians waltzed to a 15-6 victory in the opening game, but had to hold on for a 16-14 decision in game two en route to the sweep.

"It was an interesting match," said Co-Coach Art Iworsley. "We were ahead 11-8 and then 14-12 in the second game. We were serving for the win, and a ball that would have been out (of bounds) was played by one of our girls. We ended up losing the point and eventually the match.

"But, once again, it was just a product of our inexperience."

Rebecca Goldenberg hit the ball effectively and played a strong match defensively, while Carrie Green was the top hitter for Andover and serving well were Annmarie Hussey and Cara Rossini.

Lawrence 2
Andover 0

The Lancers, defending Small School Division co-champs, trimmed the Lady Warriors by 15-8 and 15-6 scores.

"Lawrence was the strongest team we've played so far, especially their defensive play and serving," said Coach Iworsley. "I know they have a few girls back from last year, and many of their players went to Bay State Games and summer camps.

"Usually when we made a mistake in this match it cost us a point, while Lawrence's errors came mostly on their serve which meant they would lose serve but not a point.

"We had a nice rally in the first game to bring an 11-2 deficit down to 11-8, but then Lawrence closed it out with the final four points and pretty much controlled the second game from the start," said Iworsley.

"Cara was diving all over the court to keep the ball alive," said Coach Iworsley. "She's improved tremendously since last year, moving from a junior varsity reserve to a varsity starter."

Andover JVs

The AHS junior varsity is off to a quick 3-0 start with victories over Lowell (2-0), Billerica (2-1) and Lawrence (2-1).

Standouts in all three matches were sophomores Cindy Su (setting), Allyson Ahern (hitting), Alyson Shea (hitting), Gina Seibert (hitting) and junior Maura Paone (hitting).

"They've all been playing the free balls well and blocking well," said Coach Iworsley.

The Lawrence match was unusual because Andover overpowered the Lancers 15-2 in the first game, then dropped the second game by an equally-lopsided 15-3 score, and rebounded to win the deciding game, 15-6.

"We put a whole new group in for the second game, and they weren't as strong as Lawrence's second unit," explained Iworsley.

Placing fourth were much-improved junior Kristen Lawrence in the 200 free (2:29.26), Mandy Wilson in the 50 free (29.49), Katie Lennon in the 100 free (1:05.45), Megan Miller in the 100 back (1:15.98), and Whitney Bates in the 100 breaststroke (1:26.63).

Fifth place finishers included Carrie Moran in the 200 free (2:32.47), Donahue in the 200 IM (2:39.96), Whitney Bates in the 50 free (29.50), senior Jenn Rando in the 500 free (6:44.60), and junior Katherine Matto in the 100 breaststroke (1:26.72).

Placing sixth, which is a non-scoring position, but turning in solid efforts nonetheless were Lindsay Bates in the 100 free (1:07.20), Mandy Wilson in the 500 free (6:44.99) and Katie Lennon in the 100 backstroke (1:20.91).

Painted rock

After the meet the oft-used rock outside the high school told the story with the words "Drowned Lowell" painted in big blue letters.

"I think Lowell may still be in a state of shock," said Coach Fitzgerald. "Everyone was looking at us as the underdog, and I know Lowell was confident coming into the meet."

Lowell had defeated Andover handily last September, 106-80.

Andover returned to the water earlier this week with a non-league dual meet against Reading High, and tomorrow afternoon the Lady Warriors host MVC rival Notre Dame Academy of Tyngsboro at the Greater Lawrence Regional Vo-Tech pool (3:30 p.m.).

That should be another barnburner, NDA having edged Andover by a single point (92-91) last fall to cost the Lady Warriors a winning season.

Golden Warrior golfers are 4-0-0 overall

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High golf team roared out of the starting gate in overdrive, following last week's 9-0 romp over North Andover with consecutive Merrimack Valley Conference victories over Greater Lawrence Regional (9-0), Billerica (5-4) and Central Catholic (7-2).

The Golden Warriors began the week alone atop the MVC Small School Division, 3-0-0 in league play and 4-0-0 overall.

The only other unbeaten teams after the first week were Large Schoolers Haverhill (2-0-0) and Lowell (1-0-0).

"I'm very impressed with the young group we have," said Coach Bob Lawson. "We've already beaten a couple of excellent teams in Billerica and Central. I know Central is better than it showed and it may be a different story when we face them again at their home course.

"I'm optimistic but with a young team you can never take anything for granted."

Andover, now 28-5-1 in its last 34 matches, returned to the links Tuesday against Wilmington at Hillview Country Club.

AHS hosts archrival Chelmsford this afternoon at Indian Ridge CC, entertains Lowell tomorrow, and next week is scheduled at Central (Tuesday) and at Dracut (Wednesday).

Strong defense not enough for AHS field hockey team

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High field hockey team played strong defense, but couldn't get its offense untracked in a pair of season-opening Merrimack Valley Conference losses to Methuen and perennial power Wilmington High.

The Rangers hung tough for a 2-0 triumph and the Wildcats managed a 1-0 triumph.

Coach Sandy Lunt was encouraged by the overall play, but noted the Lady Warriors were somewhat tentative on offense.

AHS was scheduled to play at Lawrence (2-1-0) on Tuesday, while today Haverhill (0-2-0) is at Andover and Saturday the Lady Warriors host North Andover in a non-leaguer (10 a.m.).

Methuen 2
Andover 0

Senior midfielder/Co-Capt. Stacey Lavoie, an outstanding athlete and champion hurdler, played a strong game for AHS as did senior defender Jaime Heller.

Veteran senior goaltender Tanielle Smith made four saves.

"We got off to a slow start," said Coach Lunt. "It was the first game and we'll just have to improve our overall play."

Keri Tombarelli netted both Ranger goals, one in each half, while the assists went to Alicea Salvo and Caryn Picarillo.

Wilmington 1
Andover 0

The Wildcats (1-2-0), who have dropped a pair of one-goal decisions to Chelmsford (1-0) and Tyngsboro (2-1), hung on against Andover following a first half goal by Leeann Harris set up by Stacey Gillis.

Jaime Heller once again played well defensively, along with senior Co-Capt. Katie McClune, while Tanielle Smith was exceptionally sharp in goal with 11 saves.

"We moved the ball much better and played tighter defensively," said Coach Lunt. "We put it all together against a strong opponent.

"A slow start did us in again, however. If we had played from the first whistle the way we did for most of the game, it might have been a different story."

Andover JVs

Christine Marsh scored the only goal from Debbie Sabbagh in the AHS junior varsity's opening 3-1 loss to Methuen.

The locals bounced back against Wilmington, however, squaring their record at 1-1-0 with a 2-0 whitewash as Melissa Beede and Melissa Pino netted the goals. Midfielder Amy Twohig played a strong game, and assists were passed out by Kara Stamm and Erin Bradley.

YOUTH SOCCER

Under 14 Division
Andover Tornadoes 2
Georgetown United 0

Andover dominated the first half with fine defensive play by Ann Marie Felago and Laurie Willey. Jessie Ting, assisted by Jenny Lambert, and Monica Everett, assisted by Leslie Ring, were the scorers. Beth Schapiro and Erin Croteau provided great goaltending.

Andover Lions 8
Methuen Raiders 1

The Andover Lions dominated the game from the start. The score at halftime was 3-0 from a direct kick by Michael Denhartog just under the crossbar, a shot just inside the far post by Damian Dolan on a crossing pass from Scott Petersen and Michael Denhartog on a corner kick.

Andover scored five goals in the second half: Matthew Brooks on a pass from Michael Monteiro, Jack Nolan and Damian Dolan on passes from Jeffrey Sandison, Michael Monteiro on a pass from Drew Maletz and Scott Petersen on a pass from James Butler. Phillip Ayoub and Philipp Risseeuw made key saves in goal.

Newburyport Cheetahs

In their first game of the season, the Andover Breakers beat the Newburyport Cheetahs 4-0. Melissa Cistoldi scored two goals in the first half. Phoebe Eustis assisted on the first and Carmen DeMarco on the second. In the second half, with less than three minutes remaining, Adrienne Ciampa scored, with the assist from Cistoldi, and Julie Hayner's goal was assisted by Adrienne Ciampa.

BOW: Christine Lentz and Kristen Munson for their outstanding contribution to the team effort.

Under 12 Division
Andover Attack 4
Merrimac Demons 6

The Attack showed their grit by recovering from a 5-1 deficit with five minutes remaining in their first-ever game versus an experienced Merrimac team. The Demons then sealed the win with an unstoppable shot with three minutes left. Andover scoring came from Matt Bengston when he tapped a Mike Anderson shot from near midfield past the goalkeeper and Vikas Goela, one goal unassisted, one assisted by Geordi Miliotis and Bengston, and one on a throw in from Miliotis. Dan Bellacqua provided excellent goalkeeping in the first half and Kevin Hess and Jim Hale led the comeback with excellent second-half play.

England 2 - Spain 0

England defeated Spain 2-0 in an evenly played match. Sykes and Bancroft scored with Rotman and Webber getting assists.

BOW: Jonathan Maloney, James Michelinie and Peter Groff (England).

Argentina 1 - Mexico 1

Argentina scored early on a Ben Rogers' goal, assisted by Scott Mackin. Joshua Brooks' penalty kick tied the game in the third period.

Allison Corey and Jessica Defrancisco controlled the midfield and kept pressure on Danvers' defense. Andover's goals were scored by Brittany Traynor, assisted by Tina Baraby, and Baraby, with an 18-yard left foot boot, assisted by Traynor.

Andover Lightening 6 - Groveland 0

The first game of the season was a shutout for the Andover Lightning. Bobby Rawlinson and Casey Russo were superb in goal. Scoring were Ben Wessler, assisted by Brian Kramer; Paul Bellacqua (two, one on a penalty kick and the other with an assist by Josh Coates); Mark Moskal, with assists by Doug Hsu and Justin LeCam; Danny O'Connell, a penalty kick; and Russo, assisted by O'Connell and Greg Rybicki.

BOW: Hunter Washburn, Nick Kline, Joel Rybicki and Danny Gonzales.

The following game results are from last week.

Under 14 Division
Andover Junior Warriors 4
Wenham 0

The Junior Warriors opened its season against an outclassed Hamilton Wenham team and won 4-0. Scoring for were Sarah Muller (two), Jessie Smith and Laura Orlando. Assisting were Charlotte Muller, Kim McKew, Bethany Caruso, Brenna O'Connor and Courtney Barron. Two key defensive players were absent so Megan Roth played stopper most of the game and controlled centerfield. Kristi Keller, Barb Cantos, Viki Piece, Noelle Blank and Julie Viola at keeper played strong defense.

Beverly 2 - Andover 1

This was an extremely physical game. Andover dominated the game and held the lead until halfway through the second half. The lone Andover goal came off a picture-perfect play from Charlotte Muller to Sarah Muller to Jessie Smith. Courtney Barron, Bethany Caruso and Noelle Blank were outstanding on offense and Barb Cantos, Julia Ltzenberger, Kristi Keller and Megan Roth were excellent on defense.

Andover Lions 3
North Andover Red Hawks 3

The Andover Lions had a three-goal lead midway through the first half on goals by Patrick Curtis, on a lead pass from Philipp Risseeuw, Michael Denhartog on a direct kick and Michael Monteiro, on a rebound after a pass from Jack Nolan. North Andover scored two goals in the last five minutes, one on a penalty shot and another on a wild scramble in the goal box. Both goalies came up with big saves when needed. Phil Ayoub had the best chance with a ringing shot off the goal post. He and Risseeuw made key saves in goal

Booters of the week: James Butler, Patrick Coleman and Drew Maletz for outstanding two-way play.

Andover Breakers 0

Gridders return to field Friday

By Rick Harrison

Tomorrow night Head Coach Dick Collins's Andover High football team returns to Merrimack Valley Conference play at Cawley Stadium in Lowell (7 p.m.), facing a revitalized Red Raiders team that opened with a 17-6 victory against Haverhill before dropping a 27-7 decision to powerful Billerica last weekend.

The Golden Warriors are 1-0-0 following a 17-7 opening triumph over Lawrence High two weeks ago. AHS had last week off.

After just two weeks Andover, Chelmsford (2-0-0) and Billerica (2-0-0) are the only teams left undefeated.

The win over the Lancers was only the second opening-game victory for Andover in seven years, the locals losing four straight times to Chelmsford between 1987-90 and 6-0 last September to eventual Eastern Mass. Division 2-A Super Bowl champ Methuen.

Senior Capt. Toby Guzowski opened the season in style, finishing the game with two

All matches start at 3:30 p.m.

Andover 5
Billerica 4

The Golden Warriors squeaked by the Indians at the Country Club of Billerica, dominating the first two groups with the match played in a steady rain.

Co-medalist Jeff Shea, a sophomore, beat Brian Cerroni 3-and-2 while the Mazza-Shea tandem also took the fourball point for a 3-0 Andover lead.

Freshman Pat Annese, the co-medalist, nudged the Indians' Steve Moody, 2-and-1.

Senior Mike Mazza dropped a tough decision to John Reynolds on the final hole, but the Annese-Mazza combo clinched the victory by capturing their four-ball point as well.

Billerica swept all three points in the final foursome, as senior Co-Capt. Scott Bolser beat Warriors' Co-Capt. Marc Escott and senior Co-Capt. Matt Eisnor trimmed AHS senior Brian Hussey by identical 2-and-1 margins. The Indians also won the fourball.

Shea and Annese both carded 40 over the nine-hole distance, while Jeff Mazza shot 41, Mike Mazza 42, Escott 46 and Hussey 46.

Andover 7
Central Catholic 2

The Golden Warriors once again proved to be good in the rain, drubbing Central Catholic at Indian Ridge in the only MVC match played that day.

Sophomore Co-Capt. Dave Shaffer won his match at No. 1, beating Jeff Connor 3-and-2, and he was also medalist with a crisp 3-over 39.

Jeff Shea stepped in at No. 4 and nipped Pat Gosselin, 1-up, and the Shaffer-Shea duo also captured the fourball, 3-and-1.

Jeff Mazza defeated Central's Tom Felago, 2-up, in the No. 2 slot and Marc Escott lost a tough decision to Kevin Max on the final hole.

Mazza and Escott earned the fourball point, 1-up.

In the final group, No. 3 Pat Annese nudged past Jeff Rischer, 1-up, while No. 6 Mike Mazza was beaten by the Red Raiders' Bernie Cantwell, 2-up.

Annese and Mazza made it a fourball sweep for Andover.

Annese followed Shaffer in the scoring column with a 43, Jeff Mazza fired a 44, Mike Mazza 46, Jeff Shea 47 and Marc Escott 49.

Andover 9
Greater Lawrence 0

The Golden Warriors swept all six matches and the three fourball points against the Reggies at Indian Ridge.

Picking up victories were No. 1 Dave Shaffer, the medalist with a 2-over 38, junior No. 3 man C.J. Dadd who shot 43, No. 4 Pat Annese (44), No. 2 Brian Hussey (44), junior No. 5 Nate Roberts (45) and senior No. 6 Matt Johnson (45).

The two stroke difference among five of the six AHS golfers was a good show of team balance and depth at Greater Lawrence's expense.

Janice Chu lobbed a kick into the goal in the second quarter and Christine Smaglia kicked a goal in the third quarter.

BOW: Jessica Olans and Jennifer Boyce (LA Gears); Elizabeth Asch, Susannah Araujo and Robin Karfunkel (Tangos).

Avias 3 - Nikes 2

The Nikes dominated the first quarter with goals by Maureen Meulan and Katie Casey, assisted by Jennifer Ataide. The Avias dominated play in the second quarter and scored three times to win the game.

BOW: Emily Rice, Rachel Demella and Lindsay Shaheen (Nikes).

Andover Raiders 2 - Topsfield Masco Blazers 0

Goals were scored by Peter Gerstberger, on an assist by Nathan Pelletier, and Scott Decourcy, with an assist by Pelletier.

BOW: Stephan Buba and Justin Dascoli.

Andvoer Raiders 0 - North Andover Rowdies 2

Andover Lightning 4 - West Newbury 1

Andover Ligntning's goals were scored by Chuck Murnane, assisted by Joel Rybicki; Bob Rawlinson, assisted by Paul Bellacqua; Joel Rybicki and Greg Rybicki, assisted by Doug Chu and Danny O'Connel. Casey Russo and Bob Rawlinson were great in goal and Josh Coates, Danny Consales, Brian Kramer and Pat Murnane were outstanding.

Boys soccer team rolls over opponents

Coach worried about potential lack of scoring punch before season started

By Rick Harrison

Before regular season play started last week, veteran Andover High boys soccer Coach Dave Amundsen seemed worried about a potential lack of scoring punch.

The graduation of top goalscorer Josh Nelken (14 goals) and the return of only one starter (Quang Nguyen) left a lot of unanswered questions.

Even after a 5-0 scrimmage romp over Reading he wasn't convinced, or at least pretended not to be.

If the first two games of the Merrimack Valley Conference campaign are any indication, however, the 1993 Golden Warriors may shatter all the existing team records for offense.

AHS put all the pieces of the puzzle together masterfully in a 7-0 romp over Chelmsford, and then did it again for a 5-0 conquest of Methuen.

Last year Andover didn't score its 12th goal until the sixth game.

"We certainly have to be pleased," said the ever-cautious Amundsen. "I didn't see much of this kind of play during the pre-season, but so far the kids I expected to lead the attack are the ones doing the scoring."

Senior forwards Dan Small and Nguyen had three goals apiece in the first two games, while sophomore Sean Rodrigues and Mike Maguire had two apiece.

The defense has also been strong and the goaltending letter-perfect, with senior Chris Sintros and junior Dave Charland post one complete-game shutout each in net.

The AHS juggernaut, tied with defending champ Lowell and Billerica atop the Large School standings, hosted Dracut Tuesday and rolls into Haverhill this afternoon (3:30).

Next week the Golden Warriors host Central Catholic on Tuesday night at Lovely Field (7 p.m.), and travel to Wilmington on Friday (3:30).

The Andover JVs are also off to a rollicking start with lopsided routs of Methuen, 9-0, and Chelmsford, 8-1.

Andover 7
Chelmsford 0

"Chelmsford hit the crossbar in the first three minutes of the game, and it was all Andover after that," said Coach Amundsen. "I didn't know we had this much offense in us."

Sean Rodrigues opened the scoring at the four-minute mark, assist to Quang Nguyen, as he pushed in a rebound during a goalmouth scramble.

It remained a tight 1-0 game until Mike Maguire scored two goals just four minutes apart in the final six minutes of the half.

The first tally was set up by senior midfielder Dave Poulo, who later suffered a charley-horse to the thigh that kept him out of the Methuen game, and the second was unassisted as Maguire crossed from left wing and headed a shot into the upper left corner over Chelmsford goaltender Robin Lennox.

Senior midfielder Will Hall launched the four-goal second half when he headed a corner kick in the back door, assist to senior Shawn Hadley.

Four minutes later Rodrigues made it 5-0 with his second goal of the game, unassisted, as he intercepted a Lions' pass intended for the goalie and touched the ball into the net.

With four minutes left and the Lions' backup goalie in the cage, junior defender Eric Pisick blasted home a 40-yard direct kick.

Dan Small's unassisted goal at the 38-minute mark wrapped up the onslaught, his 25-yard shot eluding the inexperienced keeper.

Chris Sintros made six saves and preserved the shutout with a copy of beauties, while Lennox made 10 stops before yielding late in the second half.

Playing well defensively for Andover were senior sweeper Lyle Morgan, stopper Adam McHale, senior midfielder Dan Queen and fullbacks Rob Weisman, Dave Stutz and Dave Mazin.

Methuen 0

Apparently lulled into a false sense of security by the win over Chelmsford, Andover needed one half to get going against the Rangers.

"I guess our kids thought the offense would be automatic," said Coach Amundsen. "They finally realized in the second half they'd have to work harder. The intensity level increased and Quang came alive."

Girls soccer team shakes off jitters, beats Chelmsford

By Rick Harrison

Goals by sophomore forwards Randi Spiegel and Missy Famiglietti were just enough, as the painfully young Andover High girls varsity soccer team shook some early first-game jitters en route to a season-opening 2-1 Merrimack Valley Conference victory over Chelmsford under the lights at Simonian Stadium.

The Lady Warriors were not as fortunate earlier this week, however, as non-league rival Wellesley High chalked up a 3-1 victory to square the locals' overall ledger.

Rain forced postponement of the early-season showdown between perennial MVC powers Andover and Billerica, after the two-time defending league champion Indians (2-0-1) registered an impressive 1-0 non-league triumph over State power Bishop Fenwick, a not-so-impressive 1-1 tie with up-and-coming Wilmington, and a 5-0 romp over perennial doormat Cambridge Rindge & Latin.

The Lady Warriors were scheduled to host Dracut yesterday and travel to Peabody High for another tough non-leaguer this afternoon.

The varsity is not scheduled to play again until next Thursday at Lowell, and the extended road trip continues on Saturday morning at Wilmington.

Coach Dick Loschi's club has seven of its first eight and eight of its first 10 games away from home, and then plays six of its final nine in Andover.

The Andover JV girls lost their opener to Chelmsford, 3-1.

Chelmsford 1

"I was very concerned at the start about playing 18 girls without any varsity experience," said Coach Loschi. "The nerves were very obvious at the beginning, but they disappeared after everyone had touched the ball a couple times.

"This is the first time in six years Chelmsford has scored a goal against us," added the Andover coach, whose team had recorded 10 consecutive shutouts against the Lions.

Chelmsford, which subsequently lost to Lowell 3-0, scored first and protected the slim lead until Randi Spiegel tied it at 32:36 of the first half.

Spiegel collected a crossing pass from senior forward Crissy Donovan and chipped a shot to the far corner of the net.

"The thing I really like was the way our girls never stopped working after they fell behind," said Coach Loschi. "Territorially we had the edge in both halves."

The game-winning goal by Missy Famiglietti also resulted from the hustle of senior forward Amy Baggeroer.

Baggeroer beat the Chelmsford keeper to the ball and centered a pass to Famiglietti, who took advantage of a wide open net to deposit the clincher.

Unfortunatly, on the play Baggeroer was involved in a collision and suffered a knee injury. She is the fourth top player to go down with the same problem, AHS standouts Vanessa Blank, Jenn Munroe and Buffy Sontag suffering debilitating knee injuries over the summer.

Andover junior goalie Kim Kelley played the first half and made one save, while sophomore Meghan Lynch worked the second half and stopped two shots.

The Lady Warriors finished with a 6-4 shots-on-goal advantage.

Also playing well defensively were senior midfielder Robin Lapointe, sophomore stopper Sue Cookson and senior sweeper Rachel Buonopane.

Andover 1

The host Red Raiders (2-0-0) took a slender 1-0 lead at halftime, and then Jen Reading scored what proved to be the game-winner for Wellesley at 5:29 of the second half.

"We came out very aggressively, bottling Wellesley up for the first 15 minutes," noted Coach Loschi. "We had some good scoring opportunities but couldn't put the ball away.

"They scored on their first shot after we made several mental mistakes."

Sue Cookson cut the Andover deficit to 2-1 with an unassisted breakaway goal at 26:29 of the second half, but the Lady Warriors were unable to net the equalizer before Wellesley added a late insurance goal.

Junior Kim Kelley played the entire game in net and made 10 saves, while defensive standouts were sophomore midfielder Liz Salvia, senior midfielder Sarah Paskowsky and senior midfielder/Captain Amy Pierro.

"Wellesley is a very competitive, well-skilled team but not as strong as it has been in other years. Still, they are always tough and provided a good test for a young, inexperienced club like ours.

"We're looking for more consistency," concluded Coach Loschi.

touchdowns, 69 yards rushing on 11 carries (6.3 average), and he also caught four passes from senior quarterback Jeff Brammer (7-14-0, 58 yards).

"We take it for granted Toby will play well defensively every week," said Coach Collins after the win. "Against Lawrence he also ran tough and made several excellent pass receptions. He was breaking tackles and running over people. The longest gain he had was on the first touchdown (17 yards).

Intensity dips

"The first half of the Lawrence game went extremely well," continued Collins, "but the intensity level dipped in the second half. I'm sure the lead seemed bigger to our kids than it actually was. The rain started pouring down and they must have thought the game was over.

"It happens with young teams like ours (two returning starters, seven seniors). They get ahead quickly and let up.

"Considering our inexperience, and the limited time we had to prepare (two weeks), we're pleased with how well we moved the ball and the overall defensive play," said Collins.

"The effort was encouraging when you consider Toby (Guzowski) is our only returning defensive starter and only three seniors saw a lot of playing time last fall," added AHS defensive coordinator Joe Iarrobino.

"Our sophomores look very good as a group. They have excellent size and they're aggressive."

Among the players turning in solid opening-game efforts on defense were interior linemen Spencer Wendt, sophomore Brian Cronin (6'0", 215), junior end Chris Brown, senior Co-Capt. Phil Smith and sophomore linebacker George Secchiaroli (6'2", 220).

"Lawrence ran the ball 35 times and gained only 75 yards," said Iarrobino. "That's just over two yards per carry, and for the first three quarters we shut them down completely.

"I think we're going to be a very good defensive team. The chemistry is excellent. Usually with so many young kids a few are timid, but there isn't one this year that doesn't want to stick his nose in and hit somebody hard every play."

Lowell

Lowell, a perennial state powerhouse in the 1950's and 60's, has been down for several years but appears on the rise under first-year Head Coach Dennis "Cowboy" Scannell who previously had a successful career at the University of Massachusetts-Lowell.

The Red Raiders have excellent size and several strong running backs including veterans Brian Cote, George Kouloheras and newcomer Scott Forman.

Cote ran for 108 yards and scored a touchdown in the 17-6 win over Haverhill, while Kouloheras added one TD and Forman ran for 90 yards.

Last weekend against Billerica, Cote had the lone TD and Forman ran for a team-high 63 yards.

Although Scannell has advertised his team will throw the ball frequently this fall, quarterback Chip Flanagan has only tossed 12 passes in the two games.

Injury update

Andover emerged from the Lawrence game with no new injuries.

Dave Jorgenson's return remains on a "wait and see" basis.

Junior halfback Bob Minasian, sidelined by a pulled muscle, should be ready for Lowell. He was dressed and on the sideline against Lawrence but did not play.

The rivals were locked in a scoreless tie until Dan Small connected with three minutes left in the half. Lyle Morgan chipped a long ball behind the Methuen defense, and Small angled in to touch the ball home.

It turned out to be the winning goal, and the end of the day for Rangers' goalie Chris Blaser who was injured on the play.

The locals erupted to score four goals in the first 12 minutes of the second half, three of them less than six minutes apart by Quang Nguyen.

Small notched his second of the afternoon at 3:13, assisted by Will Hall, and then Nguyen went to work.

He started his hat trick on a beautiful collaboration with Sean Rodrigues, lifting a diving head shot into the upper part of the net after a soft pass out front.

Dan Buchholz set up Nguyen's second of the season just one minute later, and an unassisted goal capped the attack at 11:58.

"I expected Small to do some scoring because he has good instincts and gets himself in position," noted Coach Amundsen. "I expect as the other teams hear about his scoring it will be tougher, but that's as it should be."

Dave Charland made five saves en route to the shutout, and Coach Amundsen lauded the defensive play of junior midfielder Chang Hyun, Dave Stutz and Dave Mazin.

Computer group meets Tuesdays

The Boston Computer Society, Andover chapter, has ongoing meetings every Tuesday at 7 p.m. to solve computer problems. The public is invited.

The meetings are held at the Greater Lawrence Vocational Technical School, 57 River St.

tude of the team, however, is better this year than it had been in some time.

Phillips academy opened today for its 167th year with an enrollment of 720 and a faculty of 68. At the opening assembly this morning Headmaster Claude M. Fuess addressed the school, emphasizing again the school's wartime policy "of retaining a liberal arts program while placing especial emphasis on mathematics and science."

25 Years Ago: Sept. 12 and 19, 1968

Robert E. Finneran has been named managing editor of the Andover Townsman, by Irving E. Rogers, editor-publisher of the weekly publication.

Sparks flew Tuesday night between School Committee Chairman Richard Katz and long-time committee member William A. Doherty. The issue was whether the school committee would stick to its voted policy that department heads and those with administrative responsibility should not be given coaching posts. The stand was taken last winter to keep department heads available for after-school meetings, to strengthen departmental involvement in curriculum development.

10 Years Ago: Sept. 22 and 29, 1983

The school administration will re-evaluate two "potentially hazardous" areas where children currently walk to school, the Canterbury Street neighborhood and the Smithshire Estates neighborhood, the School Committee was told Tuesday night.

Developer Yvon Cormier is ready to open up a new section of his 360-acre Andover Country Club development.

SENIORS

By Sharon L. Souza

The monthly "Supper Club" will meet on Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 5 p.m. Call the Senior Center for more information.

The Department of Public Health will present a lecture on bladder confrol on Monday, Sept. 27, at 12:30 p.m. at the Senior Center. The program will address the subject of urinary incontinence.

Walk for Elders will be held Sunday, Sept. 26, at 11 a.m. Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley will sponsor the two- to five-mile walk through a residential section of Lawrence. The Andover Senior Center will participate. Sponsor sheets are available. [See the entertainment calendar on page 19 for further information about the walk.]

We are collecting recipes for a cookbook, which we hope to prepare in time to sell at our bazaar. If you have any recipes you'd like to share with us, submit them to the Senior Center.

The library at the Senior Center is now open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. All seniors are welcome. We are still collecting books for the library. Thank you to the library committee of volunteers who have worked diligently on putting this together: Ruth Sharpe, Ruth Sherwood, Eleanor Toothaker, Doris Hudgins, Genevieve Pelletier and Anthony Correnti. If you would like to give a few hours a week to work in the library, call Olivia Scileppi at the Senior Center.

The Alzheimer's Support Group will be held at the Senior Center on Monday, Oct. 4, at 7 p.m. Anyone interested is invited.

Podiatrist Dr. Larry Goldstein will provide basic foot care to seniors on Tuesday, Oct. 5, beginning at 12:30 p.m. at the Senior Center. A nominal fee will be charged. Call the Senior Center for an appointment.

Fred Elias, Silverhaired Senator, will speak at the Senior Center on Wednesday, Oct. 6, on the health care reform: "The Single Payer Plan" of Health Insurance.

Flu shots to be given here

The Andover Board of Health will sponsor a free flu vaccination clinic Thursday, Oct. 28, at Doherty Middle School from 3:30 to 6 p.m. for Andover seniors and persons with certain chronic conditions or diseases. No appointment is necessary. Bacterial pneumonia immunization will also be offered at the clinic.

There is a fee of $5 for the pneumonia vaccine, which is reimbursable by Medicare if the senior client has Medicare B. The pneumonia vaccination is given once in a lifetime; it is not necessary to be revaccinated if you've already had it. It is recommended for adults 65 years and older. Any questions regarding the clinical aspects of these vaccines should be directed to a person's physician.

For questions or to make an appointment for the pneumonia shot, call the Health Department at 470-3800, Ext. 255.

SENIOR MENUS

Monday: Beef stew with garden vegetables, whipped potatoes, carrots, homemade biscuit, chilled pears, milk.

Tuesday: Chicken ala king, mashed potatoes, beans, wheat bread and butter, cake with frosting, milk.

Wednesday: Hot dog and beans, coleslaw, bread and butter, mustard, ketchup, ice cream, milk.

Thursday: Spaghetti with meatballs, vegetable, Parker House roll, chilled fruit mix, milk.

Friday: Clam chowder, seafood salad roll, vegetable, fresh fruit, milk.

For reservations, call 470-3830 before 2 p.m. on the business day before the lunch you plan to attend. Baked chicken will be served Monday, Oct. 4, and hamburger and fries on Tuesday, Oct. 5.

YMCA offers water class for seniors

The Lawrence YMCA at 40 Lawrence St. will offer a water exercise class for seniors on Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 to 11 a.m. beginning Sept. 29.

No swimming ability is needed to participate. Water temperature is kept at 84 degrees Fahrenheit. Plenty of parking is available.

For more information, call Frank Kenneally at 686-6191.

Walktoberfest takes place Oct. 3

The American Diabetes Association's third annual Walktoberfest takes place Sunday, Oct. 3, in seven locations across the state, including Andover.

Proceeds from this 10-mile pledge walk benefit the Massachusetts Affiliate, currently serving an estimated 400,000 people with diabetes.

James Igoe, chairman of the state affiliate board of directors, says the event would be impossible without volunteers.

Mr. Igoe says volunteers are needed at seven locations for a variety of duties. They can sign up by calling the Walk Hotline at (800) 229-2559.

Locally, Walktoberfest starts at the Volpe Physical Education Center at Merrimack College. Registration begins at 7:30 a.m. and the walk steps off at 9 a.m. rain or shine.

White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company

Good, old-fashion customer service is the hallmark of White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company. Ira Gold is the third generation of his family to serve the Greater Lawrence community at the store. The original store, at 19 White St., Lawrence, was started by Meyer Steinberg in 1948. Bernard and Cynthia Gold, Meyer's son-in-law and daughter, now own the store, which, though located at 15 Broadway, Lawrence, retains its White Street name.

White Street Paint is the largest paint and wallpaper store in the area with 9,000 square feet of display and storage space. It is a full-line dealer of Benjamin Moore Paints, and also carry California Paints, Wilber and Williams paints, Cabot stains and the newest line, Sikkens paint. With an in-store computer that can match paints to your wallpaper or drapery fabric, lots of in-stock wallpaper – as well as sample books from Kinney, Schumacher, Bowen, Laura Ashley, Albert Van Luit and Katzenbacher-Warren, and many more – White Street Paint and Wallpaper can meet your decorating needs as well. There is a wallpaper consultant on staff to answer questions and help with decisions. She will even make house calls to help with decorating projects.

White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company has 44 years of customer service behind its reputation. This dedication to meeting the customers' needs by custom mixing paints, ordering wallpaper and fabrics and by deliver the order, earns them many referrals – both customer and customer and contractor to customer. If fall refurbishing is on the schedule, be sure to stop by White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company and discover for yourself how nice, old-fashion customer service can feel.

For customer convenience, White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company now offers delivery service to customers in the Merrimack Valley. White Street Paint and Wallpaper Company is located at 15 Broadway (corner of Essex Street), Lawrence. Telephone: 688-6078 or 683-8694. Hours are Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday and Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Recycle

DO YOU HAVE an item or items that you no longer need, but that would be useful to someone else, something you'd be willing to give away if someone would come get it? For instance: boxes, storm windows, a child's bicycle, cardboard boxes, an old set of dishes. You can list your recyclable items in the Townsman's newest classified section: "RECYCLE". (FREE of charge!) It's a way to clean up your place while acknowledging the world is running out of landfill space.

Simply write us listing your recyclables and we'll print them in the paper. No phone calls please.

GENERAL INFORMATION

DEADLINE: Noon Tuesday.
CANCELLATIONS: Must be received by Monday 5 p.m. No exceptions.
ERRORS: It is the advertiser's responsibility to check ads for corrections upon first insertion. The Andover Townsman will only be responsible for one incorrect ad insertion and then only to the extent that the error affects the response rate of the advertisement.

WRITING AN EFFECTIVE AD

1. Start your ad with the merchandise you are selling or service you are offering. This makes it easier for the reader to locate your advertisement.
2. Always include the price of the item you are selling. Many readers will not respond to an ad that has no price included.
3. Place yourself in the reader's position. Include specific descriptions and you will get a quicker response.

Senior citizens want a new center

"The whole board feels this way. That's not just my feeling," said Senior Center Coordinator Sharon Souza. "There is no question that that's the general feeling. If you saw some of these other places (senior centers in other communities) you would agree."

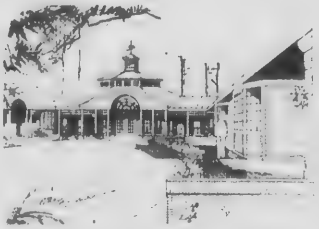
The survey by the Council on Aging was sent to 3,012 Andover seniors and was returned by 346, or approximately 10.5 percent. The purpose of the survey was twofold, according to Ms. Souza – "to substantiate the need and desire for a new senior center," and to determine other activities or alterations the seniors might want.

"I wanted to make sure I was planning for what the needs of the community are," said Ms. Souza. "We would need to create a new center just to accommodate the new programs they wanted."

The five most desired programs named by the seniors in the survey were all health related, with blood pressure screening, an exercise program and a health fair listed as the top three. The current center is without a health clinic, although nurses do come in to do periodic screenings, said Ms. Souza.

"We're looking at a clinic that could be on call all the time," at the proposed senior center, said Ms. Souza.

There also is no room in the current center for seniors just to come together to chat, and so the seniors only meet at scheduled activities and meals. One of the historic problems between the town-operated center and the seniors themselves is that the seniors, particularly the so-called Haven Associates who originated the senior center idea, feel isolated from the people who run the center and the decision-making process.



Architect's drawing of a possible new Senior Center, drawn of the ideal center at the ideal site.

"The thing that they missed the most was the drop-in feeling," Ms. Souza said of the seniors. The center is more efficiently run and offers lectures, games, classes, meals, health and exercise programs, "but to just come and hang around, there is no place to socialize and to come and meet friends."

In the survey, 52 of the 99 who responded to a question about the available space marked that there was not enough room "to accommodate the needs of the senior population." In a later, interestingly-worded question, 102 of 146 respondents answered yes, that they "would like to see a newly constructed Senior Center which would better accommodate the many growing number of services provided by the Council on Aging."

Asked whether this was a leading question, Ms. Souza responded, "I felt it was an OK question... I guess it was worded to my advantage, but many people just in passing have said they wanted one."

Ms. Souza also said people had commented to her that they had enjoyed the meals served at the center. However, while the summary on the responses to food service and particularly to the Meals on Wheels program, said, "For those who already receive meals, most said that the meals were acceptable," the numbers within the needs/assessment survey showed that more people actually found the meals unacceptable, albeit by a slim margin.

"I think the seniors have begun to accept the Senior Center but they still don't feel it's their place," said Ms. Souza. "And it isn't."

She later referred to the fact that the building is attached to the Doherty Middle School and that the food program is controlled by the schools as well.

"They've bent over backwards trying to please us," said Ms. Souza. (Yet) "even though we wanted to have fish twice a week we can't because we're under the school program."

The survey was interpreted by the Council on Aging, and supported by the figures, as also showing that, (1) as has already happened, newsletters need to be sent out to more seniors in an effort to make them aware of the programs offered, and (2) that the seniors want to be more involved with the community.

"I would love to see a senior citizen community better integrated," said Martin Epstein, a new Council on Aging member. "I would like to see the seniors help the town as well as the town help them when (the seniors) no longer can."

Fellow first-year council member Deborah Silberstein echoed another statement of Mr. Epstein, and showed she was on the same page as the older members of the council by saying, "I feel very strongly that we do need a new Senior Center."

In a discussion last year, the town offered the center a couple of options to solve the growing need for space. According to Ms. Souza, one of the options was for the town to supply the land needed for a new center while the Senior Center itself raised the necessary construction funds. Town Finance Director Tony Torrisi said that the town had made a list of possible town-owned sites and even some potential private sites.

In anticipation of the necessary major fund-raising effort, the Friends of Andover Seniors Inc., has been formed with Doreen Correnti named to head it.

"I think if we sit around and wait for the town it's going to be a while," said Ms. Souza. "The Friends group is going to proceed with the plans."

Holy Family Hospital has taken the bold initiative with the introduction of single room maternity care in their newly renovated Birthing Center. The evolution of this practice style has an interesting history. The old tradition of home birth had an unacceptable complication rate and the birth process moved location to the hospital setting. This transition understandably resulted in a shift in the priorities with the emphasis on using all the medical resources that were fast becoming available. The ultimate sacrifice of the human aspect of this natural process on an altar of technological innovation led to consumer disillusionment and dissatisfaction. As concerned physicians, doctors at Holy Family recognized the growing discontent, but did not wish to deny the improvements in perinatal care. "We are committed to re-establishing women as the major players in their birthing process. It has been shown that quality care need not be compromised by altering the physical and philosophical environment in which women give birth," said a doctor there. A single room with both the ambience and creature comforts of home that emphasizes choice, privacy and family participation satisfies all those needs. The discreetly placed technical facilities ensure that all resources are available should they become necessary. Women have spoken. They wish to give birth once again and not be delivered. The hospital has listened.

Total quality in maternal health care

By Michel Lirette, M.D., and William H. Edwards, M.D.

Although maternal morbidity and mortality have greatly decreased during the last 30 years, the steady improvements in infant health have been much less dramatic. Despite spending a higher portion of our gross national product on health care than any other country, the United States ranks poorly in infant mortality. Most women in need of adequate care are still least likely to receive it. Low income, lack of insurance, limited access to care or social problems do not help. The direct result of this failed medical revolution resulted in fragmented, impersonal and erratic quality of care. This poor quality in maternal care is directly responsible for the high percentage of babies still born, prematurely or underweight. The objectives of a new approach for total quality in maternal health care need to be clearly defined.

The traditional objective of maternal care is to protect the health of the pregnant woman and her infant throughout pregnancy and neonatal period (first month after birth). The new approach will put the emphasis on health promotion and on prevention of disease rather than on treatment. Adverse pregnancy outcomes will be greatly reduced by promoting physical and psychological health before conception, by developing a multidisciplinary approach to maternal care and by extending care to infant through the first year of life.

Consequently, every woman (with her partner) contemplating pregnancy should consult her physician and a preconception risk assessment and counseling be made. The medical history should include questions on family and genetic history (diabetes, hypertension, malformations, etc.), previous medical or obstetrical problems, exposure to medication, environmental haz-

From emergency health care to specialized treatments, everything we do at Holy Family Hospital is focused on one goal: To provide you and your family with the highest quality health care available. Anywhere. It's a "commitment to healing" that each and every one of us takes personally. And it's backed by the most advanced medical staff, and technology, in the region. You'll feel good at Holy Family Hospital.

Health care heads in new directions

As the demographics of the American people change, also changing is the way health care is provided. This is becoming most noticeable in the short-term rehabilitation assistance needed by thousands of Americans being discharged daily from hospitals and trauma centers, and the way continued care is being given.

More than 4 million Americans now receive short-term rehabilitation services annually. According to Questar, a local marketing research company, an estimated 480 Andover residents receive rehabilitation services each year. Both the U.S. and local numbers are forecast to rise rapidly in the decades ahead.

Rehabilitation services are now recognized as an effective method of improving the quality of people's lives and returning people with disabilities and injuries to productive lives. The growing demand for rehabilitation services has, in part, paralleled a more general demand for comprehensive health care, driven most noticeably by the aging of the U.S. population. Today, it is estimated there are 3 million Americans over the age 85. By the year 2000, that number will increase to 4.6 million; and estimates show that by 2040 there will be 12.2 million Americans over the age 85, 1 million of whom will be over age 100.

Rehabilitation services are now recognized as an effective method of improving the quality of people's lives and returning people with disabilities and injuries to productive lives.

The increased need for rehabilitation services, coupled with the rising cost of medical care, has resulted in a growing realization of the critical function provided by quality nursing homes. Today's well-staffed facilities have become a vital link to providing lower-cost, sub-acute services, and have become a major part of providing new solutions to the health-care crisis faced by many communities.

Physicians, hospital discharge planners and HMOs across the U.S. are now viewing quality nursing facilities as the most appropriate discharge setting for hospital patients with complex rehabilitation needs. Today's modern nursing homes are well-staffed and equipped to offer comprehensive rehabilitation programs designed to maximize independent living. Many homes can provide physical, occupational and speech therapists and individual treatment schedules for a wide variety of medical needs that can not be effectively provided in the home, or that would be prohibitively costly in a hospital setting.

An added advantage now recognized by many physicians and community health services is the benefit of home-like environment that many skilled nursing homes provide. The residential setting of the modern, well-administered homes often helps stimulate independence while providing quality care. This combination of benefits have catapulted many nursing facilities to the forefront of sub-acute, rehabilitation care field.

Running for fitness, safely

Here are some tips on running for fitness with an extra margin of safety.

• Select the right shoes. When buying running shoes, consider investing in footwear that offers rear-foot shock absorbency, a counter reinforcer for added stability, a removable insert under the heel for arch support and a lace lock for a more precise fit.

Look for open mesh panels for breathability, a heel loop for easy on/off and a mid-sole design that provides a wide base of support to help prevent pronation

• Select running apparel that works for you. Running wear must be measured by its quality, superior function and attractive design (or you won't wear it). Depending on the garment type, look for waterproof/ breathable fabrics, front and back vents, a detachable hood and elasticized, adjustable cuffs.

Pockets for keys and ID are important, as are ankle zips with Velcro tabs, vented knees and articulated elbows.

• Look for clothing and accessories customized for visibility. Under such low-visibility conditions, it is essential that safety trim be built into shoes and apparel.

"It's The Fast Track To Recovery."

Sutton Hill offers comprehensive rehabilitation programs designed to maximize independence. Physical, occupational and speech therapists provide individual treatment plans for a wide variety of orthopedic, neurological and medical diagnoses. Our goal is to maximize the highest level of functioning

"Our program is designed to provide close, constant attention to the individual and to motivate the person to work hard to reach their goals," said Kathy Lemay, Administrator "It's the fast track to recovery."

In addition, Sutton Hill provides residents the services of a caring and highly skilled staff, fine dining, and extensive recreational opportunities.

If you or someone you know could benefit from our rehabilitation program, give us a call: 508-688-1212.

The Cedardale Aquatic Center in Haverhill features an Olympic-size swimming pool .

Cedardale Aquatic Center opens for third season

Summer may have passed by once again, but there's no need to pack away those bathing suits with Cedardale Aquatic Center opening on Oct. 1.

The Aquatic Center, featuring an Olympic-size pool with an attached wading area, a Jacuzzi and newly expanded locker rooms, offers families and individuals the opportunity to swim indoors from Oct. 1 through April 30.

Offering a wide variety of programs and lessons, as well as an abundance of scheduled times for lap and family swims, Cedardale Aquatic Center is able to satisfy the needs of swimming enthusiasts of all ages.

Group swim lessons featuring both day and evening classes are available for all regardless of age or ability starting with infants all the way to adults. A new addition to this year's junior programming is a U.S. swim team. The team, geared to the more serious swimmer, practices three days per week for juniors age 12 and under and five days per week for those over 12.

Besides the swim team, juniors may also want to take part in the monthly splash party or plan a pool birthday party.

Adults can receive a great workout by participating in the Waterworks, aerobics in the water, classes or the Master Swimming program. Can't swim, or just learning? There are non-swimmer or beginner swimmer adult classes available.

Individuals and families can purchase memberships to the Aquatic Center entitling them to all lap and family swims as well as significantly reduced rates on all lessons and programs.

Fall programs start Oct. 2. Stop by or call 373-1596 for more information. The Cedardale Aquatic Center is located on Boston Road in Haverhill and is owned and operated by Cedardale Athletic Club.

March of Dimes warns against alcohol consumption while pregnant

Despite a report published in Epidemiology saying "occasional drinking binges" during pregnancy by a group of moderate drinking women did not appear to affect the health of their newborns, the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation warns that alcohol use in pregnancy increases the risk of stillbirth and miscarriage and can cause serious physical and mental birth defects not apparent at birth.

"This study examined the physical health of the newborns," said Michael Katz, M.D., vice president for research of the March of Dimes. "It did not rule out mental retardation or future behavioral and learning problems in these babies, which cannot be diagnosed this early." In addition, he noted, these babies may also have defects of the heart or other structures not apparent before they are discharged from the hospital.

Dr. Katz said that each year an estimated 5,000 babies are born with total

MicroPeel: The new peel

Why are people who have never considered skin peels now having them?

In a word: MicroPeel. It's "the new peel." Developed by BioMedic Clinical Care, this three-step, 20-minute procedure safely, effectively and painlessly uncovers better-looking, healthier skin – the skin that's trapped by your damaged, micro-thin top skin layer.

Until now the only way to effectively uncover it was through risky, less-sophisticated chemical peels. With the MicroPeel, the risks are virtually gone – so people can have the skin they've always wanted.

Learn more about the MicroPeel. For a consultation or free brochure about Alpha Hydroxy Acids and Peels, contact Dr. Stephen Scully at A Center for Aesthetic Surgery in No. Andover by calling 687-1313.

Carpal tunnel syndrome: The workplace disorder of the '90s

Have you ever woken up at night with a nagging ache in your hand or wrist? Does your hand sometimes feel numb or weak? If so, you may be suffering from carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS), an ailment that is quickly becoming known as the workplace disorder of the '90s.

The best thing to do, if you suspect you may have carpal tunnel syndrome, is to see your doctor.

CTS is identified with the workplace because it most frequently occurs in people whose jobs are highly automated or require them to perform repetitive wrist movements.

Assembly line workers, grocery checkers, musicians, data entry operators, computer users, cooks and carpenters are among those at risk. It can also, however, be related to rheumatoid arthritis, gout, amylodosis, diabetes or even pregnancy.

CTS affects the median nerve, which supplies sensation to the thumb, index finger, middle finger and half of the ring finger, and power to the thumb muscle. When the median nerve is compressed as it passes through a narrow tunnel of bone and ligament at the wrist, it results in CTS, which causes numbness, pain and weakness.

Although the pain and numbness may happen at any time, they usually begin at night. Initially, shaking or massaging the hand may help to relieve the pain, but if untreated, the problem will progress and become more painful.

Permanent nerve damage may result if the symptoms are ignored.

As it advances, carpal tunnel syndrome weakens the grip, and in chronic cases, it may even cause gradual deterioration of the thumb muscles. Permanent nerve damage may result if the symptoms are ignored.

"Treatment for mild, early CTS may consist of wrist splints to relieve pressure on the median nerve by supporting the wrist in a straight or neutral position," according to Dr. Michael Bowman, a hand specialist with Oakland Orthopedic Associates. "Medication may also be used to reduce inflammation and swelling. And in the most serious cases, a surgical procedure called a carpal tunnel release may be recommended." Dr. Bowman also noted that new surgical methods are continually being investigated.

To help avoid CTS, Dr. Bowman suggests taking the following steps:

- Avoid using your wrist in a flexed or extended position for long periods of time.
- Use your whole hand and all of your fingers to grasp an object.
- Avoid repetitive movements.
- Alternate easy and difficult tasks, switch hands or rotate activities.
- Rest your hands periodically.
- Exercise to strengthen your hand and arm muscles.

A healthy start for healthy babies

Earn a lifetime of hugs by giving your baby a healthy start even before you give birth.

Healthy Start, a federal initiative promoting healthy behaviors by mothers-to-be and quality health care for newborns, encourages expectant mothers to see a health care provider as soon as they know they are pregnant and then to keep all follow-up appointments.

Other "do's" and "don'ts" for mothers-to-be:

- Eat three healthy meals daily, plus healthy snacks.
- Drink six to eight glasses of water, fruit juice or milk daily.
- Gain 25 to 35 pounds during pregnancy.

Don't smoke cigarettes or drink liquor, beer wine or coolers; don't use over-the-counter medicines, such as Aspirin, cold remedies, antacids or other pain relievers; don't get an X-ray without checking with your health care providers, or use "street drugs" such as marijuana, PCP, cocaine or crack. These substances can be harmful to expectant mothers and their babies. They can cause babies to have breathing problems, brain damage and birth defects.

The Healthy Start program encourages pregnant women and their partners to adopt healthy behaviors during pregnancy and to maintain them once their babies are born.

Denise Costello, R.N., M.S., discusses breast self examination with a patient at the Winchester Hospital Breast Care Center.

Winchester Hospital offers new resource for breast care

Winchester Hospital's new Breast Care Center is the area's newest resource for matters relating to breast health. Whether a woman is looking to get a baseline mammogram or just wants to talk to someone about breast self-examination, the Breast Care Center is the community's most comprehensive and convenient resource.

An important feature of the Breast Care Center is its affiliation with New England Medical Center.

"Our purpose is to coordinate and integrate all the available breast care resources in a single location so that a woman's experience is more user-friendly, and there is faster resolution of any health problem she may have," explains Richard Kingsbury, M.D., medical director of the center.

An important feature of the Breast Care Center is its affiliation with New England Medical Center (NEMC). The intent is to give the center a tertiary affiliation and to provide patient referrals to NEMC when needed. The other benefit of the affiliation is the multidisciplinary approach to patient care, which involves NEMC and Winchester Hospital teaming up in case management conferences.

"We're here to let women know all of their options," says Denise Costello, R.N., M.S., nurse coordinator at the Breast Care Center. "That includes treatment alternatives at NEMC."

Referring to the Winchester Hospital and NEMC affiliation, Ms. Costello notes, "Basically we're a team."

For women who are diagnosed with breast cancer, the center coordinates all necessary treatment services as well as related services such as home care, psychological counseling, nutrition services, rehabilitation and clothing/prosthesis information.

The center is founded on philosophies of empowering women through education and support. "Our emphasis is on breast health," says Dr. Kingsbury, "and women are encouraged to actively participate in their care, not simply receive it."

Take time to talk to the pharmacist

While millions of Americans rely every day on prescription medicines to feel better and get well, studies show that some patients will still end up sick or hospitalized because they don't understand or follow medication instructions.

To address this problem, which has been reported to cost billions of dollars annually in preventable illness, the federal government has enacted legislation requiring pharmacists to advise Medicaid patients about all new and renewal medication prescriptions. But it is important for all patients, not just those using Medicaid, to take the time to talk with a pharmacist about medication. That's why 23 states currently require pharmacists to consult with every patient about every prescription. More states are considering such legislation.

Whether or not a specific state requires patient counseling by pharmacists, a patient can make medication use safer and more cost-effective by insisting on full information from the pharmacist each time a prescription is filled. A few simple questions will help.

- What is the name of the drug and what is it supposed to do?
- How and when do I take the medication and for how long?

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Early detection is key to fighting breast cancer

You may be hearing lots of facts and figures about breast cancer during the month of October, which is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Some of those facts are alarming; others are encouraging. Yet the basic message is simple: Breast cancer, when detected early, can often be completely cured, and you can help detect this disease.

The bad news about breast cancer is sobering. The incidence of breast cancer is going up and scientists do not know exactly why. This year, 180,000 American women will develop cancer of the breast. Most will have no known risk factor for the disease – meaning all women are at risk.

The good news is that, despite increasing incidence rates, the death rate from breast cancer has been fairly stable for many years. Improvements in early detection of breast cancer and in treatments for the disease help account for this trend. Also, earlier diagnosis now gives women more options for treatment: approximately 36 percent of women who develop breast cancer do not have a breast removed.

Early diagnosis is the key to treating breast cancer. After treatment for early breast cancer, a woman's survival rate is as high as 90 percent.

Every woman should take an active role in protecting her health by practicing monthly breast self-examination, having a yearly breast exam by a physician and getting regular mammograms after age 40.

Many women become so afraid of what they might find that they avoid examining their breasts. It is vitally important not to be ruled by fear. Even if a woman or her physician finds a lump, the chances of it being cancer are small, one in five. However, if there is a problem, early detection not only improves survival chances, it may also improve a woman's chances of avoiding a mastectomy.

Many women become so afraid of what they might find that they avoid examining their breasts. It is vitally important not to be ruled by fear. Early detection not only improves survival chances, it may also improve a woman's chance of avoiding a mastectomy.

There is some confusion over the statistic that "one in eight women" will develop breast cancer during their lifetime. This figure refers to women who live to age 95, at which time their chances of developing the disease jump to one in eight. The risk of breast cancer increases with age: At age 30, women have a one in 2,525 chance of developing the disease; at age 40, a one in 217 chance, and at age 50 the rate jumps significantly to one in 50.

Whatever a woman's age, it is important to remember that taking care of the breasts is not something to be put off until tomorrow, but an essential and life-long project.

New phone service available for hearing-impaired people

Thanks to a new nationwide telephone relay service now in operation, millions of hearing-impaired people will be able to use the phone without the need for Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf (TDDs). Until now, both parties in a phone conversation had to have the devices to communicate.

Elder Affairs Secretary Franklin Ollivierre said the new service will make the telephone more user friendly for hundreds of hearing-impaired elders in the Commonwealth.

"Once again, new technology has provided the means for people with a disability to interact with others in a normal, efficient manner," he said.

Specially trained operators are available to receive incoming calls from people who use the devices and those who don't. The operator will obtain the billing information, place the call and then relay the call. Operators voice what is typed and type what is voiced.

To place a relay call, a person dials 1-800-439-2370 and gives the operator the telephone number she wants to call. The operator puts the caller on hold while dialing and announcing the call. The person called types his/her conversation to the operator. The operator then voices (relays) the conversation to the caller.

There is no charge for the relay operator's services. A call costs no more than the local or long-distance rates for a regular call, except for the extra time required for the typing and translation.

The system is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Complete confidentiality is maintained.

The system was implemented as part of the Americans with Disabilities Act with the cost absorbed by major phone carriers and some state funding.

Bay State Eye Associates customers are valued friends

Dr. Dee C. Kahan at Bay State Eye Associates at 209A North Main St., Shawsheen Plaza, founded and owns Bay State Eye.

"We're a family-owned and run business; all the offices are owned by optometrists. We care about our patients' eye health and the way they look. My name is on the door, so it is very important to me that we provide the highest quality at the best prices," said Dr. Kahan.

The group of independently owned offices began in 1979 as a response to the large, impersonal optical chains. Bay State Eye's motto is "Better buys for your eyes."

The group provides high quality, personalized service at much lower prices, because its overhead is much lower than optical chain stores.

Bay State Eye provides a full range of ophthalmic services, such as complete eye exams and glaucoma testing and retinal photography.

Contact lens services include all new innovations, such as colored, disposables and bifocal contacts.

At Bay State Eye, you're not just a number, you're a valued friend.

Cholesterol: How to keep it in check

Cholesterol was never a problem for people who lived in caves. And if modern people's diet still consisted of berries, grains and the occasional mastodon, it wouldn't be a problem now, according to CardiSense, a quarterly health-oriented newsletter published by pharmaceutical manufacturer Marion Merrell Dow, Inc.

In fact, cholesterol is crucial to people's health; that is until a high-fat diet and sedentary lifestyle begin to overwhelm the body's system for regulating cholesterol.

Cholesterol is crucial to our health; that is until a high-fat diet and sedentary lifestyle begin to overwhelm the body's system for regulating cholesterol.

We've all heard about good and bad cholesterol. The good cholesterol comes in the form of high-density lipoprotein or HDL; the bad in the form of low-density lipoprotein or LDL. HDL carries cholesterol away from cells that have too much; LDL carries cholesterol to the cells that need it.

The problems start when this system is overloaded, leading to excess LDL cholesterol in the blood. That in turn can lead to fatty deposits in the arteries that impede blood flow, too often resulting in high blood pressure, heart disease, heart attack or stroke.

Although consumers are not likely to abandon the local grocery store for their ancestors' hunting and gathering lifestyle, people can put the cholesterol system back in balance with a low-fat diet, exercise and if necessary, medication.

Registered dietitian Paula Antonacci and the American Heart Association offer the following tips for cholesterol control:

• Cut down on foods high in cholesterol and fat, particularly saturated fat, like fatty meats, bakery goods, eggs and cheese. Substitute low-fat dairy products, fish, chicken and lean meat.

• Eat more fruits, grains and vegetables. They have very little fat and are filling.

• Read the product label. Just because a product claims to be cholesterol-free doesn't mean it's not high in fat.

• Exercise regularly. That doesn't mean that one must jog five miles every day. A brisk 20-minute walk three times a week will do the trick.

Academy Manor provides home-like atmosphere, personal approach to guests

Academy Manor of Andover, a 174-bed skilled intermediate care, Medicare-certified nursing home, has been owned and administered by David Solomont and his family since 1975. He and his staff take pride in providing a home-like atmosphere and a personalized approach for each guest.

Located in the heart of Andover, Academy Manor borders the Phillips Academy bird sanctuary. When weather conditions are conducive, guests and their families often stroll the walking/wheelchair path or relax at one of the many park benches along the path, offering a tranquil view of the sanctuary land. During times of inclement weather, there are many areas throughout Academy Manor where guests and their families can visit.

The full-time therapy department offers both physical and occupational therapy. The therapists work with guests to maximize their individual ability. Speech therapy is also available.

Academy's music therapist conducts a variety of music groups as well as visiting guests individually to sing a favorite song.

As owner and administrator, David Solomont prides himself on being accessible to families and guests.

Seven days a week, 365 days a year, Academy Manor's activity team provides a variety of programs including a "Silver Foxes" aerobics class and various discussion groups. Many guests enjoy trips on Academy's 15-passenger, handicap-accessible bus to the theater, to local restaurants or to many other exciting destinations. Religious services are also provided in-house for all faiths.

Academy Manor's dietary team offers a unique selective meal program featuring a five-week menu cycle where guests are able to choose their meals. At Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter, guests who plan to celebrate the holiday at Academy Manor may invite family members to dine with them and share a festive meal.

A beauty/barber shop and gift shop are on site at Academy Manor of Andover for the guests' convenience. Whether a permanent or haircut, the "Hairs to You" beauty shop can accommodate.

Guests can "charge" their purchases in the Academy Manor Gift Shop which offers an array of cards, candy, gifts and sundries. A gift shop cart also travels throughout the home daily with a sampling of gift shop items.

Academy Manor is proud of its long-standing service as a training site for nursing students, occupational therapy and physical therapy students, and as a site for interns in administration and music therapy.

As owner and administrator, David Solomont prides himself on being accessible to families and guests. Those seeking admission information speak directly with him and his assistant director of admissions, Laurie Ortstein. This affords Academy's social service team the time to provide the optimum direct service to all guests and their families at Academy Manor.

Author lectures on asthma

Dr. Paul J. Hannaway, author of "The Asthma Self-Help Book," will present a lecture on Tuesday, Sept. 28, from 7 to 8 p.m. in the Hale Hospital Auditorium, 140 Lincoln St., Haverhill This lecture is hosted by Breathless Incorporated Asthma/Allergy Network and Hale Hospital. The lecture is open to the public at no charge.

An asthmatic and parent of asthmatic children, Dr. Hannaway has dedicated his 20-year medical practice to the treatment of asthma and allergies. He recognizes the importance of collaborative care between the asthmatic, the family and the environment and believes that asthma can be successfully managed with "education."

Dr. Hannaway has served as president of the Massachusetts Allergy Society and the New England Allergy Society, director of the Allergy Clinic at Boston Floating Hospital at New England Center and co-director of the Allergy Section of North Shore Children's Hospital in Salem, assistant clinical professor at Tufts Medical School, clinical fellow at Harvard Medical School and other professional posts. He is the author of numerous publications concerning asthma and allergies.

What's in a name? Everything!

At Academy Manor of Andover it's a reputation that has been earned, in part, by the quality and variety of programs that our activities team provides for all of our Guests.

We warmly welcome volunteers! Please contact our Director of Guest Services, Deborah Evans for further information.

Homecare offers alternatives

More and more people are turning to home care as an alternative to continued hospitalization or nursing home care while they are recuperating from illness or surgery.

"In many instances," said Randy Beth DiSalvo, president of Nursing Services Homecare Inc., "you're not even allowed to stay in the hospital while you recuperate because the insurance company won't let you."

In an effort to reduce their costs, insurance companies, including Medicare and Medicaid, require that patient hospital stays be of much shorter duration than we'd like them to be, she continued, and because of this, the patient and his family is faced with providing the care necessary for a safe and complete recovery. Many times the mere thought of this can be overwhelming and frightening.

"There is no question," said Ms. DiSalvo, "we're seeing much sicker patients now than in years past and because of this home care has changed. It's not uncommon for a patient to have a dressing that needs to be changed on a daily basis or even need intravenous medications and feedings."

More than 20 years ago, Nursing Services Homecare Inc. made a commitment to bring the highest levels of patient care to where it's needed and when it's needed.

"We are part of the physician's plan of treatment and work closely with the physician and the hospital to assure a smooth transition into the home so that the goals of the plan are met," said Ms. DiSalvo.

In order to achieve this, she continued, "we have a full staff of qualified professional registered nurses, rehabilitative therapists, such as physical therapists, occupational therapists and speech therapists and home health aides to assist the patients personal care needs."

> 'It's very satisfying for me to hear from our clients how we have helped them through their illness.'
> Randy Beth DiSalvo president, Nursing Services Homecare Inc.

Nursing Services Homecare Inc. is a family-owned and operated home care provider, said Ms. DiSalvo. "We're not part of a national company" and because of this "my reputation is at stake and I take a personal interest in all aspects of the agency."

"It's very satisfying for me to hear from our clients how we have helped them through their illness," she said.

Nursing Services Homecare Inc. is a Medicare and Medicaid certified home health provider serving the Merrimack Valley, North Shore and Southern New Hampshire areas. Taking control of allergies

Millions of Americans can expect to wage war against their allergies. While most people know that allergies can cause runny nose, sneezing and congestion, many people don't realize that in some cases allergies also can cause breathing difficulties or wheezing.

"Individuals who suspect they have allergies or allergy-induced asthma should consult their physician for proper diagnosis," said Dr. M. Eric Gershwin Chief of Allergy-Clinical Immunology, University of California Davis School of Medicine.

"All too often people think they have to suffer through allergy season. The fact is that discomfort can be minimized when people are armed with the right tools to help themselves," he said.

These "tools" might include a prescription medicine to control the allergies or allergy-induced asthma. In some cases, an over-the-counter medication may be used to relieve allergies. For occasional mild asthma attacks an over-the-counter medication may be used to provide temporary relief.

But there's more to taking control of allergies and allergy-induced asthma than medication. One of the most effective ways for allergy sufferers to minimize allergic reactions is to "clean up" the air they breathe.

People with allergies or allergy-induced asthma can reduce their exposure to allergens by taking the following steps:

- Keep windows and doors closed to prevent airborne substances from entering your home; at the very least, cover open windows or doors with screens.
- Avoid freshly clipped grass or heavily wooded areas.
- At work, or during social occasions, avoid smoke-filled areas – tobacco smoke aggravates some allergy sufferers.
- Limit prolonged exposure to pollens, ragweed and other seasonal allergens and wear a protective mask, if necessary, to filter out potential allergens.
- Keep the home as dust-free as possible: vacuum regularly, and wash out bedding and pillows often.
- Keep damp places, such as bathrooms and basements clean and well ventilated.
- Keep pets outdoors as much as possible and out of the bedroom.

Don't ignore allergy symptoms. And don't suffer unduly with allergies or allergy-induced asthma. Take control now, learn the facts and visit your physician.

Women's Health Suite serves in sensitive, personal way

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. The American Cancer Society, the National Cancer Institute and the American College of Gynecologists agree that mammography is now the best defense you have against breast cancer.

"The Women's Health Suite at the Andover Walk-In Medical Center is dedicated to serving women in a sensitive and personal way with a private dressing area and waiting room. Utilizing state-of-the-art equipment and certified mammographers, the Walk-In has succeeded in making the task of having a mammogram simple," said Donna Marcello, R.T. (R) (M), mammography supervisor.

Patients are pre-registered by telephone the evening before the appointment in an effort to reduce waiting room time.

The entire examination from start to finish is virtually no longer than 20 to 25 minutes.

A certified female radiologic technologist is assigned to accompany each woman through the mammogram and information of breast self-exam is provided to all patients.

A mammogram is a simple, painless, low-dosage X-ray screening test that can spot trouble before it becomes a threat – to a woman's life and her breast.

Immediate appointments can be scheduled at the Women's Health Suite, which offers flexible scheduling to meet a woman's needs.

Kick off Breast Cancer Awareness Month by calling 475-0419 to schedule an appointment. After all, a mammogram is a simple test no woman can fail.

'Real man' benefits from nose surgery

For the last 10 or 15 years, David Billings has thought about having rhinoplasty (corrective surgery on his nose) to solve two problems that have plagued him for as long as he can remember: The way his nose worked and the way it looked.

Finally, this year, the 33-year-old bank officer decided to wait no longer and have the dual-purpose surgery performed.

"Over the past year, some people at work passed away and their deaths really affected me," he said. "I realized that if there's something you really want to do, you'd better not wait. Life is just too short."

David Billings' surgery was performed by Dr. Gurmander S. Kohli of the Center for Plastic Surgery and Personal Development in Stoneham.

A double deviated septum (a piece of cartilage in the middle of the nose) had obstructed his breathing for several years, and in the past four or five years, the problem had gotten worse.

"I was breathing through my mouth almost all the time and I couldn't smell anything or really taste food. I was also getting colds all the time. It just got to the point where I had to do something about it."

As in the case of Mr. Billings, who had broken his nose twice, a deviated septum is often the result of a trauma that damages the structure and causes it to grow in a crooked manner, eventually obstructing breathing. Corrective surgery involves straightening the septum and removing or correcting any other obstructions.

As he thought about the surgery, Mr. Billings decided he might as well improve his life in more ways than one.

"It's very important that patients know exactly what they want to fix before we do anything," said Dr. Gurmander Kohli of the Center for Plastic Surgery and Personal Development at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham and Boston University Medical Center.

"That tells me they've really thought about it and that it's a change that will make a concrete, important difference in their lives. They're not looking for some kind of magic to fix their lives."

It's also important, he says, that people have this kind of surgery done "only for themselves."

"They shouldn't be trying to please anyone else," he said.

Mr. Billings couldn't agree more.

"I really didn't do this for anyone else; just for myself. I just wanted to be a little happier when I looked in the mirror," he said.

Attractive, well-groomed and impeccably dressed, he seems an integral part of his artfully decorated Melrose apartment, filled as it is with antiques, fine china and crystal.

It's not surprising that he chose to make an aesthetic difference in his own appearance.

"I can remember once being in a store that was full of mirrors and catching a glimpse of myself in one. My first thought was, 'Who's that guy with the funny looking nose?' Now I just feel better about the way I look. It's made me more at ease and outgoing. And I'm dressing a little more flamboyantly. I recently bought a stylish hat that I really like to wear," he said.

It was not until after the fact that Mr. Billings realized how much of an effect both the functional and aesthetic problems with his nose had had on his life. Since surgery, he's hardly had a cold, he breathes and sleeps better at night and he can once again experience all the smells and tastes of the world.

Along with his sense of smell and taste, he's also noticed a difference in his sense of himself.

"A while after the surgery, Dr. Kohli wanted to show me some 'before' an 'after' pictures, and I could hardly make myself look at the 'befores.' "

But according to Dr. Kohli, "If it's important to a person's self-image, then it's a change that's important to make. To someone looking on, the difference may be imperceptible, but it may make all the difference in the life of the person himself."

Mr. Billings recalled how several friends couldn't understand why he wanted to have the cosmetic part of the surgery. He also felt a certain stigma against men having cosmetic surgery.

"There's sometimes the feeling that a man who has surgery isn't a 'real' man. But that's ridiculous. A man has as much right as a woman to do something to make himself happier," Dr. Kohli said.

Other popular cosmetic surgery procedures for men, he said, are eyelid surgery, forehead lifts to smooth out wrinkles, and facelifts. Surgery on the lids and around the eyes is the second-most frequently requested procedure among men.

Now, many of the people who originally hesitated about supporting Mr. Billings' decision can appreciate the difference it has made.

"People tell me I look great. My mother says, 'Well, you used to have your father's nose, now you have mine.' "

Harvard Health and Lahey Clinic announce affiliation

Two of New England's leading health-care organizations, Harvard Community Health Plan (HCHP) and Lahey Clinic, have agreed to an affiliation that will make all Lahey Clinic physicians and the Lahey Clinic Hospital part of HCHP's extensive network of health centers, medical groups and hospitals.

Under the agreement, which was finalized last Friday, HCHP members will be able to choose Lahey physicians for their primary care and Lahey will provide specialty and hospital care for members at selected HCHP locations. In addition, the two organizations intend to develop an expanded network of physician group practices on the North Shore and in the northwest suburbs. Harvard Community Health Plan is New England's largest health maintenance organization; Lahey is a nationally-renowned tertiary medical center and one of New England's largest multi-specialty group practices.

"This match constitutes an excellent fit with the evolving model of health care – a managed care plan and a multi-specialty group practice and medical center forming a network of primary, specialty and acute care services," said Lahey Chief Executive Officer Bruce W. Steinhauer, M.D.

"We are delighted to have this opportunity to participate with one of America's leading health maintenance organizations in forging new patterns of care," said Dr. Steinhauer. "This partnership with HCHP will be an important means of ensuring and expanding the public's access to Lahey services."

Harvard Community Health Plan President and CEO Manuel M. Ferris said the partnership "will provide mutual benefit by strengthening the ability of each organization to meet the needs of patients, purchasers and their own medical staffs."

Mr. Ferris pointed out that HCHP has expanded its physician group practice network by more than 20 percent in 1993. "Our goal is to give members access to the best physician groups and hospitals in our region," Mr. Ferris said. "Lahey is one of the nation's premiere group practices and they will be an important addition to our network. Our joint focus will be on finding even better ways to ensure the efficient delivery of high-quality health care."

Under the HCHP/Lahey agreement:

• Lahey Clinic in Burlington and six Lahey primary care practices in other communities will become part of the HCHP network. Lahey will provide physician and hospital services to HCHP members who choose a Lahey site for their primary care.

Lahey Clinic, located in Burlington.

• A group of Lahey internists and specialists will practice at HCHP's Burlington center (20 Wall St.) starting in January. Together, the HCHP and Lahey physicians will serve both HCHP and non-HCHP patients. Lahey will provide specialty physician and hospital care for HCHP Burlington members with the exception of obstetrics, which will remain at Winchester Hospital.

• Lahey will be the principal provider of tertiary physician and hospital care for HCHP members who receive their primary care at the Chelmsford Health Center and at the Nashua Medical Group in New Hampshire.

• HCHP's Peabody Health Center will develop referral relationships and other clinical programs with Lahey Clinic North, the regional medical center planned to open in Peabody in 1994.

New Mother/Infant Unit gives families healthy start

At Lowell General Hospital, a baby's birth is a family affair and the hospital's beautiful new Mother/Infant Unit, which opened in June, is the perfect place in which to take the first few steps of parenthood.

"The center gives new families a healthy start by providing care, support and services that begin well before birth and extend beyond their return home," says John Hughes, M.D., chief of obstetrics and gynecology at LGH. Parents are encouraged to prepare in advance by taking advantage of a wide array of education classes, including the prepared childbirth course, early pregnancy classes, sibling separation, A Prepared Childbirth Weekend, breastfeeding class, Caesarean section class, pre- and post-natal exercise, and more.

More than 20 obstetricians and family practitioners deliver at the Birthplace – the largest staff in the area. "Since each experience of labor and delivery will be unique," says Dr. Hughes, "with a physician's guidance, moms can choose which, if any, medications or anesthesia will be used if needed during labor and delivery." Lowell General Hospital offers the most advanced options available, including local anesthesia, spinal anesthesia, epidural anesthesia and pain medication.

The Birthplace offers the LDR concept, where mothers complete labor, delivery and recovery (LDR) in a single private, home-like room. With fewer moves and interruptions, childbirth is a smoother, more natural experience." says Judy Boyle, nurse manager of the LDR Unit. "Our nurses have special training and experience in labor and delivery, guide moms through the birth experience step by step."

After the birth and when the mother recovers and begins to get acquainted with her newborn, she'll move to the brand new 24-bed mother/infant unit for a quiet, comfortable stay, assisted by specially-trained mother/baby nurses. "Siblings and grandparents are encouraged to visit at any time," says Ms. Boyle. "And moms may keep her baby in the room or visit the baby in the nursery as often as she wishes.

Parent's health before conception may affect baby

Biologically, pregnancy begins with conception, but a healthy pregnancy and baby begin well before that. A woman's health before conception – and the health of her mate – may affect fertility, the viability of a pregnancy and the health of the unborn baby.

"Heredity, some environmental factors and pre-existing medical conditions may present certain unavoidable risks," says John Hughes, M.D., chief of obstetrics and gynecology at Lowell General Hospital. "However, choices prospective parents make in pregnancy health, lifestyle and workplace practices can be beneficial and some changes are best made months before any effort to conceive."

Women who are underweight or overweight should, under a physician's supervision, begin a program to reach a healthy weight, says Dr. Hughes. Weight loss during pregnancy can undermine fetal health and development.

If a woman's work or that of her mate exposes either to environmental toxins or other potential health hazards, they should consult a genetic counselor to determine whether the exposure could impair fertility or present a risk to pregnancy or fetal health. If so, a change in the work environment may be recommended that may take time.

Some habits – such as smoking or drinking – may be tough to break and the stress of a cessation effort is best tackled before adding the physical and psychological pressures of pregnancy. Marijuana, cocaine and alcohol, as well as some prescription medications, also present a serious threat to pregnancy or fetal development and any use should be stopped well before conception.

Emotional health is another important facet of pre-pregnancy health. "A woman with strong self-esteem and generally good feelings about her relationships and her future is in the best shape to tackle the challenges of pregnancy and parenthood," says Dr. Hughes. "And it is typically easier to resolve troubling conflicts before pregnancy adds new pressures for all involved.

"Ideally, a woman should adopt pregnancy health practices as soon as she is ready to conceive," he says. "This means eating a nutritionally balanced diet, exercising moderately and avoiding substances such as caffeine, alcohol and tobacco."

Why so soon? Because most women don't discover they're pregnant until more than a month after conception – a crucial period for fetal development and the time during which most birth defects occur.

A thorough pre-pregnancy consultation with a physician can provide helpful insights for both the woman and her doctor. The consultation, which should include a pelvic examination, blood test and immunizations, if necessary, establishes a woman's current health status and allows time to remedy some health problems and plan appropriate follow-up care to minimize any known pregnancy risks from others.

"Although certain aspect of pregnancy are unpredictable," says Dr. Hughes, "good health is one of the strongest advantages a woman can give herself and her baby."

Choosing an obstetrician or family practitioner is one of the first steps in preparing for a pregnancy. Call Lowell General Hospital at 937-6425 to receive a free maternity planning kit and a list of doctors who deliver.

Redesigned emergency room opens at Hale Hospital

Hale Hospital's new "patient friendly" emergency facility, featuring streamlined "patient friendly" procedures, celebrated its opening with an official ribbon-cutting ceremony during the hospital's annual Health Fair last week.

Patients notice the changes as soon as they enter through the double doors where they are greeted by Hale Hospital's triage nurse, who determines the severity of the emergency. The patient then enters the new patient registration area where they can discuss insurance coverage with privacy.

While patients and visitors sit comfortably in the new, attractive waiting room or play in the new children's play area, Hale's staff keep them informed as to the condition of patients and the approximate timing of tests and treatments. The new vending area offers beverages and snacks to patients' family members and visitors.

One thing that hasn't changed is the quality of Hale Hospital's emergency room medical care. Thorough, competent and caring physicians, nurses and staff are here to serve patients. They even call the patients the next day, just to be sure everything is progressing as it should.

The new emergency room is the result of Hale Hospital's continuous quality improvement program. The hospital surveyed its patients to discover how they viewed the emergency services, developed new procedures and physically reconstructed the area.

All the reconstruction was performed by the Hale Hospital maintenance department to allow for greater flexibility.

Continuous quality improvement is just that, a continuous process. The emergency room staff wants to continually implement changes as they are needed.

To stay on top of patient wishes, the hospital will frequently survey patients and their families so they can continue to serve the needs of the community.

Healthy eating for a healthy heart

Heart attacks are the number one killer in America.

One of the major factors that increases a person's chances of having a heart attack is a high level of cholesterol in the blood.

Changing diet is often the most effective way to lower or maintain your cholesterol at a desirable level. Many of people eat almost half of their daily calories in fat and bodies respond by making more cholesterol.

A person's goal should be to limit fats to less than one-third of total calories. This can be done by avoiding fats, such as butter and "hidden" fats used in processed foods.

Another way to reduce cholesterol level is to eat more fiber. One kind of fiber (soluble fiber) lowers your cholesterol level by keeping the cholesterol one eats from being absorbed by the body. Oats, fruits and beans are rich in soluble fiber.

Eating more complex carbohydrates can also help reduce cholesterol. Complex carbohydrates such as grains, beans and root vegetables (carrots, potatoes, beets, etc.) aren't terribly fattening and are healthy substitutes for fatty foods.

For every one percent a person can lower his cholesterol, one can reduce his risk of cardiovascular disease by two percent.

Steps from American Red Cross can make difference in emergency situations

Based on the American Red Cross Safety Handbook, here are some steps that can be taken to make a difference in an emergency:

• Do call Emergency Medical Services (EMS) first whenever someone is seriously injured or ill.

• Don't put creams, ointments or oils on burns, but cool a small, superficial burn by immersing it in cool (not icy) water.

• Do call the poison control center in any emergency involving poison. Keep the number near your phone.

• Don't use tweezers to remove a bee's stinger. Scrape it off the skin with a fingernail, credit card or other stiff-edged object.

• Do apply pressure to stop bleeding of minor cuts. Use a sterile dressing or clean cloth and apply pressure directly to the wound and elevate.

• Don't throw away a tooth that been knocked out. Press it back into the socket or put it in a container of cool milk and take it to a dentist or hospital emergency department immediately.

Free information session on low-fat eating set for Oct. 4

Hale Hospital's clinical nutrition team will present a free two-hour information session on "Low-Fat Eating" on Monday, Oct. 4, at 7 p.m. in the Hale Hospital cafeteria, 140 Lincoln Ave., Haverhill.

This interactive session is designed for people who want to fit healthy eating into their busy schedules. A few of the topics to be discussed are the rationale for a low-fat diet, how people are effected by dietary intake and exercise, the "yo-yo syndrome" of dieting and the fat content of foods.

The workshop is free. Call 521-8553 to reserve a seat.

Hearing aid advances

Following is an excerpt from the presentation of Donna Selger and Joel Rubin given at the May 5, 1993, meeting of SHHH-NH (Self Help for Hard of Hearing People of N.H.)

Technology update

There have been many advances in hearing aid technology over the past few years. Changes prior to this period revolved around smaller, more cosmetic instruments. The last five years have seen more sound processing innovations, which have allowed hearing aids better address the needs of the hearing impaired in hearing better and not just meeting the requirement of being more discreet.

Hearing aids fall into three main categories. The first are the advanced sound processors. The second allow the dispenser to choose more accurately among standard circuits. The third are the traditional units.

The advanced sound processors enable the hearing impaired to understand speech easily in many different situations, including background noise. Some examples of these type of units include the ReSound PHS incorporating ATT Bell Laboratories technology, the 3M Memorymate, the Oticon MultiFocus and Etymotic Research's K-AMP. Companies like ATT and 3M are obviously able to spend more significant research and development monies and the results reflect these efforts.

The second category includes most programmables (some of the advanced sound processors also have this feature.) The major benefit to the user is that the dispenser can tailor the sound to the user. Once the sound processing is adjusted, it is essentially a standard response. Some units incorporate the ability for the user to choose amongst several sound qualities (or programs, thus allowing a change for different environments. This is like having multiple hearing aids in one package and is an important benefit of certain systems.

The standard technology is often confused with some of the more sophisticated models. Gain control circuits can adjust sound loudness automatically, but standard "AGC" circuits become less intelligible when the circuit is active. Noise reduction circuits "ASP" are also widely used in the industry, but are not effective for a large percentage of users. In both cases, the technology is widely used but decidedly inferior to the advance sound processors in the first category.

Not falling clearly into the three main categories are some novel instruments designed for particular users. One is the Rion waterproof aid. It can literally be worn safely in the shower. Most users are those who perspire heavily and thus find other hearing aids unreliable. It is a member of the third (standard) category, but provides benefit to those who have been frustrated with more traditional units.

New deep-seated instruments are not only less visible, they have sound advantages based on the proximity of the instrument to the ear drum. The Philips XP and Starkey Tympanette are the first two units available.

Another outstanding unit is the Danavox DFS Genius instrument. It is the only truly digital hearing aid, yet is targeted at the severely impaired only. It senses the whistling (feedback) and electronically removes it. Thus users who would like more power from their aids, but are frustrated by the whistle before the aid is loud enough, can go through that barrier. The incorporation of digital technology in a familiar behind-the-ear design is indeed a sign of things to come.

What to do

As is readily apparent, there are many more choices today. What would be best depends on the individual requirements. It is most important to choose a dispenser who is knowledgeable with state-of-the-art technology. Find out what units are dispensed through the facility, and if any can be demonstrated.

Also, be sure that you have two things done. One is a recent hearing test, preferably by a certified, licensed audiologist. Second is a list of concerns, expectations and examples of critical listening environments that you have. This will allow the dispenser to best choose the most appropriate technology. Also find out about return and exchange privileges and charges.

The only way to know if the device is right for you is to use it. If you are not receiving adequate benefit, ask about the possibility of changing the unit. With the more expensive, sophisticated instruments, there is no reason to be disappointed in hearing aid performance – but no aid can return your hearing to normal or eliminate background noise.

Babies and bananas

In the first six months of life, a baby's birth weight may double and it triples by the end of the first year.

Just imagine: If this rate of weight gain continued, a child could weigh as much as 7,000 pounds by its fifth birthday.

To support the rapid growth of these early months, babies need an exceptional number of calories for their size and a good distribution of all nutrients, in a form their very young systems can handle.

That's why, when baby is ready for solid foods, pediatricians often recommend a mashed, thoroughly ripe banana.

It's especially digestible and its broad vitamin and mineral content can make a strong contribution to baby's growth, say the experts at the International Banana Association.

Tallman Eye Associates continues to expand

Gilda Edelstein, the administrator at Tallman Eye Associates, is pleased with the selection of Dr. Cynthia L. DeAngelis as their new associate. "She will be seeing patients in all three of our offices and she is looking forward to meeting new and old patients," according to Mrs. Edelstein.

A graduate of Yale Medical School, Dr. DeAngelis completed an ophthalmology residency at Yale-New Haven Hospital. She has also completed a fellowship in corneal and refractive surgery at the University of Connecticut.

Dr. DeAngelis, who grew up in Weston, said, "I am very glad to be back in Massachusetts. I had always intended to return and I am quickly learning my way around the Merrimack Valley."

Dr. Carter B. Tallman and his staff spent many months searching for a new associate. Dr. Tallman said, "Dr. DeAngelis is a very highly trained ophthalmic surgeon and will be an asset to our practice and ophthalmic care in the Merrimack Valley. We are delighted to be able to provide more sophisticated management of corneal diseases, including corneal transplants at the Lawrence General Hospital."

Dr. Cynthia L. DeAngelis

Tallman Eye associates have been doing no-stick "Phaco" cataract surgery for several years now. Dr. Tallman and his staff have always donated many hours to community service. Dr. DeAngelis remarked, "I was so impressed with the dedication and excellence of Tallman Eye Associates that deciding to come here was an easy decision. The mission cataract surgery program and the Walk for Elders' event are the types of service I would like to give back to the community."

Dr. DeAngelis will add her expertise in corneal surgery and the management of corneal diseases to the wide range of specialties at Tallman Eye Associates. Dr. DeAngelis, in addition to doing cataract and laser surgery, will be performing refractive surgery. Dr. Tallman states that he first performed refractive surgery in the 1980s and is looking forward to working with Dr. DeAngelis and using the new techniques and instruments.

"Refractive surgery can reduce or eliminate the need for glasses or contact lenses in some instances," according to Dr. DeAngelis. "Thousands of these procedures have been done in other parts of the country. Until recently this surgery was not being done in this area. During my fellowship with Dr. Daniel Taylor, we performed hundreds of surgeries of this type. I am also hoping to do information seminars about eye health similar to the ones I did in Connecticut."

Since refractive surgery is such a new and exciting event, Dr. DeAngelis said that she would be happy to speak with anyone who would like more information.

Late-summer cold or allergies?

The coughing, wheezing and sniffling that some people mistake as a late summer cold actually may be allergies caused by ragweed pollen, say physicians at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston.

"Many people do not realize that pollen allergy season runs until the fall's first heavy frost and that usually doesn't happen until mid-October, at the earliest, in most parts of the U.S.," said Martin G. Ostro, M.D., director of the infirmary's Allergy and Immunology Service. "As a result, it is common for people who unknowingly have ragweed allergies to think that they have a cold."

Allergies affect an estimated 50 million Americans. One of the main causes of allergies is pollen. Pollen is produced by the male plant and is used to fertilize, or pollinate, the female plant. Nonflowering plants that rely on windborne pollination – as opposed to flowering plant which require insect pollination – are the main source of pollen allergies.

"Pollen has been known to travel up to 200 miles from its source so it very likely that someone's allergies are not caused by the flowers and weeds in their own backyard but by some field or garden quite a distance away," Dr. Ostro explains. "This makes it difficult for people to reduce outdoor pollen contact."

The Northeast has four pollen allergy seasons: tree pollen season from March to June; grass pollen season from mid-May to June; weed pollen season from May to mid- to late-October; and ragweed pollen season from mid-August to mid- to late-October.

Despite their apparently similar symptoms, there are ways to distin-

Cedardale Athletic Club gears up for fall season

With the days becoming shorter and shorter, fun and healthy lifestyles of summer seem to dissipate as well. This problem can easily be solved with a membership at Cedardale Athletic Club. Cedardale can extend a person's fun and fitness all year round.

Cedardale's state-of-the-art fitness center with more than 180,000 square feet offers the widest selection of cardiovascular, circuit and free weight equipment in the area. Add to that three aerobic studios accommodating more than 75 classes per week.

To complete the fitness program, Cedardale also offers tennis, racquetball, basketball, volleyball and swimming as well as superior programming for adults and juniors in all areas.

One of Cedardale's most exciting programs is Good For You, a nutritional exercise program open to members and non-members alike. The program instructs and supports its participants in healthy low-fat eating as well as proper exercising habits. Cedardale's fall session of Good For You starts the week of Sept. 26.

So don't let the change of seasons put a halt to your healthy lifestyle – stop by Cedardale Athletic Club today for a tour or call 373-1596 for membership information. Cedardale Athletic Club is located on Route 125 in Haverhill.

guish the differences between a cold and an allergy. "Someone who has a cough, a stuffed nose and a fever probably has a cold, since allergies do not cause a fever," Dr. Ostro explains. "On the other hand, someone who has cough, stuffed nose and itchy eyes probably has an allergy because colds normally don't cause itchiness."

In addition to itchy eyes, sneezing, runny nose and nasal congestion, some people may experience fits of coughing, wheezing and shortness of breath if their lungs are sensitive to pollen.

Dr. Ostro offers the following tips to help people control their pollen allergies:

- Stay indoors or minimize outdoor activities, when possible, during periods when the pollen count is high.
- Keep all windows closed and use an air conditioner to filter the air. Use the air conditioner's "fan only" setting when it is too cool to use the unit. Clean the air conditioner's filter once a week or per the manufacturer's instructions.

> 'Many people do not realize that pollen allergy season runs until the fall's first heavy frost and that usually doesn't happen until mid-October, at the earliest, in most parts of the U.S.'
> Martin G. Ostro, M.D.

Treatment for pollen allergies can include using over-the-counter antihistamines, decongestants and nasal sprays. Nonprescription nasal sprays should be avoided except to treat severe nasal congestion, and then not for more than five days in a row because they rapidly lose their effectiveness and are habit-forming. Some people may need prescription medications to control their allergies. Dr. Ostro advises people to see a primary care physician or an allergist if their allergies worsen or make breathing difficult.

Many patients rely on primary-care physicians

Andover residents Donald Miller, M.D., and Joanne Nowak, M.D., have been happily practicing primary care medicine together for more than seven years. Dr. Miller is a board-certified family practitioner and Dr. Nowak is a board-certified internist. Their practice is complemented by Melinda Raboin, M.D., and Catherine Elie, R.N., C-F.N.P.

Until a few decades ago, virtually all medical care was delivered by general practitioners. Beginning in the 1950s, more and more physicians and patients became enamored with "specialty" care, and the ranks of GPs dwindled to the point that it became difficult for people to find a doctor who cared for the whole family and the whole patient. "With the advent of managed care, securing a primary care physician has become increasingly difficult for patients," says Dr. Miller.

The medical specialty of family practice began in 1969 and distinguished itself as the first to require recertification every six years. A residency in family practice takes three years, much like pediatrics or internal medicine. It includes inpatient and outpatient training in adult medicine, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, adult medicine, including routine gynecology, gastroenterology, infectious disease and complicated cardiac care and intensive care medicine.

As a primary care internist, Dr. Nowak says she strives to provide comprehensive care for the adult patient. And when necessary, she seeks subspecialty consultation and assumes responsibility for coordinating and assuring continuity of care.

"Besides my focus as an internist, I have a special interest in men's health care, which includes routine pap smears, family planning and referrals for mammography," she says.

Dr. Nowak lives in Andover with her husband, Paul Gilmore, M.D., and their children, Ryan, a second-grader at West Elementary School, Anne, 4 years old, and Kate, 1 year old.

Melinda Raboin, M.D., a board-certified family physician, recently joined the practice. Her training includes broad patient and outpatient training in pediatrics, obstetrics, and gynecology, as well as internal medicine. Her services include preventive health care for adults and children, care of most acute and chronic diseases, gynecology and obstetrics, as well many office procedures and minor surgery.

"Family practice is the specialty that cares for the whole family, and the whole person, regardless of age or type of problem," says Dr. Raboin. "It's wonderful to watch families grow." Her training allows her to care for 90 percent of the problems she sees. "Family practice is not just for the whole family, it is for the whole person," says Dr. Miller. "I do not believe that we are only a collection of separate organ systems, each needing a different physician, but we are a single functioning unit."

> Dr. Donald Miller

"As a family practitioner who delivers babies, I have the unique pleasure of knowing a family ahead of time, being with them throughout the pregnancy and when the baby is born, continuing as the baby's doctor," says Dr. Miller. "I have delivered babies at many area hospitals and can say without hesitation that Lowell General Hospital is the best, and the new mother/infant unit makes it even better. The new Level II nursery with a neonatologist also makes Lowell General Hospital the safest area hospital for newborns. I love delivering babies and watching them grow up."

Dr. Miller serves as chief of family medicine at Lowell General Hospital. He lives in Andover with his wife, Lauren, and their two children: Zachary, who is in kindergarten at Shawsheen School, and Carolyn, who is in second grade at West Elementary School.

Dr. Miller practices medicine with two other physicians, Joanne Nowak, M.D., a primary care internist, and Melinda Raboin, M.D, a family practitioner. All are active members of the medical staff at Lowell General Hospital.

Dr. Nowak is a board-certified internist. Her training includes inpatient and outpatient training in all of the sub-specialties.

Dr. Raboin lives in Westford with her husband, Paul, and their newborn daughter, Anna. "The birth of my first child this September emphasized for me the uniqueness and wonder of birth," she says.

The three physicians' skills complement one another. Each physician provides primary care: Dr. Nowak sees adolescents and adults, and Drs. Miller and Raboin provide primary care to patients of all ages. Because of her skills as an internist, Dr. Nowak usually handles most of the complicated adult medicine cases in the practice. And in addition to providing primary care to patients of all ages, Drs. Miller and Raboin deliver babies at The new Birthplace at Lowell General Hospital.

Besides the three physicians, the practice is fortunate to have a board-certified family nurse practitioner, Catherine Elie, R.N., C-F.N.P., who joined the group in 1990 after working for years in the outpatient clinic at Tufts University. "A family nurse practitioner functions much like a physician," says Dr. Miller. Ms. Elie handles acute illnesses, performs physical exams for children and adults, provides general family health care, prenatal and gynecological care and counsels on family planning issues. In one word, she can be fairly described as

Your family is our specialty.

At their Primary Care Medical Office, Drs. Miller, Nowak & Raboin believe in preventive health care for you and your family. As board-certified family practice and internist physicians, this remarkably talented and caring team offers a comprehensive family-oriented medical practice.

Additionally, Catherine Elie, R.N. C-F.N.P., is a certified family nurse practitioner handling acute illnesses, general family, prenatal and gynecological care.

Be good to your health. Be good to your family's health. Let us be your Primary Care Doctor.

ards, cigarettes or alcohol. Working conditions should be studied carefully, as well as socioeconomic and nutrition status. A complete physical examination should be performed with optional laboratory tests. Health promotion through counseling should result, if it takes place before conception, in decreasing smoking, alcohol and drug use, better nutrition and social support. This will really help prepare couples for parenthood. To succeed, a multidisciplinary approach is essential.

Because social, nutritional and psychosocial risks interact with medical risks, a multidisciplinary approach is vital. Maternal and ob-gyn health centers outside the traditional hospital setting should provide comprehensive services, including on site preconception assessment and counseling, nutrition evaluation by a dietitian, necessary interventions by a social worker, laboratory and ultrasound testing among others with a very strong emphasis on health promotion and on prevention of diseases. These user-friendly, close-to-home, ambulatory services should improve significantly maternal health care resulting in a complete, more personal and consistent quality of care. These health ambulatory centers are designed to make more effective use of patients', doctors' and other health professional's time while offering much of the sophisticated technology formerly reserved for in-patients. These facilities are staffed in a lean fashion consistent with the emerging cost constraints affecting not only maternal health care but the whole health care system.

In conclusion, a successful strategy to guarantee total quality in maternal health care will require:

An innovative and motivated team of caring doctors and other health care providers bound together by their devotion toward preventing medicine.

An innovative and organized ob-gyn ambulatory health center with a complete and on site range of services from laboratory to ultrasound.

And finally and very crucial, a deepened collaboration between doctors and hospital.

Drs. Edwards and Lirette are the newest obstetric and gynecologic specialists to join the medical staff of Holy Family Hospital. Their medical offices are located at 203 Turnpike St. (Route 114), North Andover, and 60 East St.,

Saints Memorial Medical Center expects successful consolidation of child and teen health services in October

Saints Memorial Medical Center expects to successfully complete the formation of a new Child Health Center and the relocation of Teen Health Services by late October. The relocation of Teen Health and Pediatric Counseling to the St. Joseph's/West Campus will mark the successful consolidation of all outpatient pediatric health services to one location. The St. Joseph's/West Campus will then become the home to multi-disciplinary outpatient programs focused on children and teenagers.

The Child Health Center is comprised of programs already established and operating at the St. Joseph's/West Campus, including a Pediatric Primary Care Clinic, Pediatric Cardiology & Pediatric Gastrointestinal (G.I.) clinics and speech/language therapy. Pediatric Counseling and Teen Health will be added to the list of programs in late October when they are scheduled to relocate to St. Joseph's/West from St. John's in October.

Teen Health Services, currently located at the St. John's/East Campus is an outpatient program for adolescents offering complete medical and mental health services for young adults ages 12 to 22. The staff of health care professionals at Teen Health can help adolescents address specific issues such as asthma, eating disorders, pregnancy, diabetes, family problems, etc. Teen Health Services operates a satellite clinic at Lowell High School. call 934-8240 for an appointment.

The consolidation of these services onto the St. Joseph's/West Campus is another step in the strategic plan for Saints Memorial Medical Center. By providing a wide range of specialized medical services and many new and valuable health care resources to the community, Saints Memorial Medical Center is on its way to elevating Greater Lowell's health care system to an even higher level of excellence.

The Pediatric Primary Care Clinic is an office-like clinic for routine well-child care including annual exams and immunizations as well as treatment of common illnesses. A rotating staff of experienced local pediatricians staff the clinic Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Specialized diagnosis and treatment for pediatric cardiology and astrointestinal illness is now available locally at the Pediatric Cardiology & G.I. clinics at Saints Memorial Medical Center. Specialists on staff at Saints Memorial Medical Center and New England Medical Center staff these clinics. Appointments are accepted upon referral by calling 937-4842.

A psychiatrist, a neuropsychologist, family therapist and social workers comprise the Pediatric Counseling Service staff at Saints Memorial Medical Center. They offer diagnosis and complete, coordinated treatment of behavioral disorders, attention-deficit hyperacidity disorder, sleep disorders, bed wetting, depression and much more. This service is currently located at the St. John's/East Campus. Call 934-8232 to schedule an appointment.

Speech/language therapy and evaluation of speech disorders is available to pediatric patients on the St. Joseph's/West Campus. Treatment and diagnostic services are available to children with various disorders including language delays/disorders, articulation, stuttering, voice, swallowing and hearing impairment. Contact the Speech/Language Therapy Department at Saints Memorial Medical Center at 937-4562 to schedule an appointment.

The consolidation of these services onto the St. Joseph's/West Campus is another step in the strategic plan for Saints Memorial Medical Center. By providing a wide range of specialized medical services and many new and valuable health care resources to the community, Saints Memorial Medical Center is on its way to elevating Greater Lowell's health care system to an even higher level of excellence.

alcohol syndrome (FAS). Their organs, especially the heart, may not form properly. Most babies with FAS also have smaller brains and some degree of mental retardation. Another 50,000 babies born to women who drink moderate amounts of alcohol during pregnancy have fetal alcohol effect (FAE), a condition characterized by some, but not all, of the birth defects associated with FAS.

The effects of drinking during pregnancy can last a lifetime in a child. Adolescents and adults with FAS have severe psychological and behavioral problems and usually are unable to hold down a job and live independently. Ronald T. Brown, Ph.D., associate professor of psychiatry and pediatrics at Emory University School of Medicine in Atlanta, and a March of Dimes grantee, has monitored from birth to age 6 a group of children who were exposed to alcohol before birth but who do not have full-blown FAS. He and his colleagues found that as these children reached school age, they not only scored lower on measures of intellectual ability but also exhibited more aggression, destructiveness, inattentiveness, and nervousness.

"It's not clear whether there is a threshold amount of alcohol that is consumed before damage to a fetus occurs," Dr. Katz said. "The serious defects caused by drinking during pregnancy cannot be cured, but they are 100 percent preventable."

The March of Dimes recommends that women who drink alcohol and have an unplanned pregnancy should stop drinking as soon as they think they are pregnant. Heavy drinkers should avoid pregnancy until they believe they can abstain from alcohol entirely while pregnant.

"Occasional Binges by Moderate Drinkers: Implication for Birth Outcomes," by Kristi-Anne Tolo and Ruth E. Little of the School of Public Health, University of Michigan, was published in the August issue of Epidemiology.

The March of Dimes is a national voluntary health agency whose mission is to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects and infant mortality. Through its Campaign for Healthier Babies, the March of Dimes funds programs of research, community services, advocacy and education.

Take time to talk to the pharmacist

• What foods, drinks or other medicines or activities should I avoid while taking this medicine?

• Are there any side effects and what do I do if they occur?

• Is there any written information available about the drug?

If the prescription is a refill, patients should open the bottle and make sure the medication looks like it did the last time it was filled.

Patients must be alert and ask questions about medication.

"Today's pharmacists are taking a greater role in helping patients make the best use of their medication," says Joseph A. Oddis, executive vice president of the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists.

"Pharmacists are medication-use experts, trained to counsel patients. Their knowledge can make a difference in the safety and quality of a patient's medication care. It can make a big difference in whether the patient feels better or not," he says.

New surgery produces instant vision for cataract patients

Cataract surgery is really nothing new.

Surgery to remove a clouded lens in the eye was done before the turn of the century, but side effects often hurt patients more than the operation helped.

Much later as techniques improved, patients recovered in bed with bandages on their eye for two weeks, sandbags bracing their head still. It wasn't until the recent advent of modern microsurgery that resulting sight was vastly improved and recovery dramatically shortened. Twenty-four hours after the operation, when the eye patch is removed, patients can see.

"Now we've taken another giant step," according to cataract specialist Dr. Wilson Horsley, chief of ophthalmology at New England Memorial Hospital, "We're using a new technique that gives cataract patients instant vision. It is predicted that 50 percent of all cataract surgery will be performed this new way within a one to two year period.

"Patients are able see immediately, even before they get off the operating room table. And the next day, their vision is frequently 20/40 or better, making it possible for them to drive or return to any form of close work. In the past, we often had to wait a good two weeks for vision to return this completely," comments Dr. Horsley.

Dr. Horsley refers to the new technique as "instant vision cataract surgery." The cataract is removed through an opening made directly into the eye's cornea – the circular, transparent bubble covering the lens of the eye.

For 80-year-old Rose Mathews of Saugus, the difference between her recovery from cataract surgery this past May and her procedure of seven years ago was dramatic.

"After this recent surgery I could see right away. In fact, when I went home from the hospital I turned on TV and it was clearer and brighter than ever. After the operation seven years ago, it took a good two weeks before I could see that clearly and all that time there were restrictions on movement. I couldn't bend or move quickly so I wouldn't re-injure anything," Mrs. Mathews recalls. She and her brother-in-law decided to have the new procedure together.

As Dr. Horsley explains, the new instant vision technique was responsible for Mrs. Mathews' speedy return to full vision.

"We take advantage of the anatomy of the eye to operate from the side, directly into the cornea, rather than through the conjuctiva (the mucous membrane that lines the inner surface of the eye.) We use an extremely sharp diamond blade to make a very small, three-millimeter opening," Dr. Horsley comments. Dr. Hors-

Dr. Horsley operates thrugh an incision in the cornea, the clear part of the eye. Patients can see immediately afterward, and do not need bandages or patches.

"This is the first and only medical subspecialty group that measures hands on, current surgical skills. Dr. Horsley has gone beyond what is normally required as an ophthalmologist and volunteered to take this exam, and have his surgical skills judged by his peers."

Lahey Clinic, Harvard Health announce affiliation

• HCHP will continue its affiliation with the former North Shore comprehensive Care physicians, who joined the Lahey staff in May as Lahey Danvers, Lahey Beverly and Lahey Ipswich.

• HCHP's network will also include the former Internists, Inc. physicians who joined staff in March as Lahey Arlington, Lahey Belmont and Lahey Billerica.

• HCHP and Lahey will develop a new group practice network on the North Shore and northwest suburbs. Physicians joining this network will be full members of the Lahey medical staff.

Lahey Clinic currently has a staff of 260 physicians based at its headquarters in Burlington, plus another two dozen at group practice sites on the North Shore and in the Northwest suburbs. Lahey is renovating the former Fleet Bank Building at the North Shore Mall in Peabody to open next summer as a regional medical center known as Lahey Clinic North.

HCHP provides comprehensive health care and coverage to its 550,000 members through a network of more than 50 health centers and affiliated medical groups in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and southern New Hampshire. HCHP members receive their hospital care at selected teaching and community-based hospitals, including Beverly Hospital, Winchester Hospital, Brigham and Women's Hospital and Children's Hospital in Boston.

A letter from Cardio Studios, a new women's health club

The newest addition to the North Shore fitness community is an all women's health club named Cardio Studios, located at 197 Main St., North Reading.

"We had a vision of a place where women could work out in a comfortable atmosphere," wrote the founders.

That is why the mother/-daughter team of Laura Baker and Leslie Baker Abreu have set out to open a complete women's health club. Having first-hand experience in the set-up and running of Gold's Gym Plus in Braintree and Woburn, co-owned by Scott Baker, "we feel qualified in bringing to the area a unique concept in the fitness industry," they said.

Occupying more than 6,000-square-feet of the top floor of the Main Street address, Cardio Studios has carefully selected state-of-the-art equipment for cardio vascular and fitness training, consisting of Stairmasters, Lifecycles, Lifestride treadmills and a complete circuit of Paramount Equipment with accompanying weights and benches for strength training, which studies show help slow the rate of bone loss in women.

Aerobic classes will include the latest in innovative workouts (i.e. step, muscle conditioning and more), performed on the newest suspended wood floor by certified instructors. Aerobic activity increases person's energy level while stimulating your metabolism.

The studio's amenities include a full locker room that will be a clean and comfortable place to begin and end a workout. It will consist of private showers and dressing areas and a dry heated sauna.

The studio will provide on-site babysitting service for a nominal fee with hours in the morning and evening.

Cardio Studios' credo is "Knowledge is power," so in turn the staff plans to provide monthly seminars on women's health, nutrition and fitness issues.

"We are very excited to be able to offer these services to the women of this area and look forward to meeting you all. Call us at 664-4466 or come visit our new facility at 1977 Main St., North Reading, just an eighth of a mile past Star Market."

New surgery produces instant vision for cataract patients

According to Dr. Horsley, the benefits of instant-vision cataract surgery are well worth the investment in a new, diamond-blade surgical knife and the time spent to learn the new technique. One result of this technique is that most patients hardly look as if they've had surgery at

"Because there's no need to manipulated the conjuctiva, there's very little irritation. So patients come into the office the next day looking as if they've never had a procedure done," Dr. Horsley said. According to Dr. Horsley, most lay observers would not be able to tell which eye had been operated on.

Dr. Horsley's new use of topical anesthesia rather than an injection under the eyelid makes patients feel as if they've never had a procedure. "It makes surgery so much more comfortable," said Dr. Horsley. "Think about it. It would be much more comfortable to have a few drops placed in your eye rather than a needle injected under your eyelid.

"Patients right out of the recovery room can see immediately. Patients can return to a normal lifestyle more quickly, with full, unrestricted activity almost immediately," Dr. Horsley adds.

This immediate return to vision is particularly important to a patient who is monocular (having vision in only one eye) to begin with, Dr. Horsley observes. "If that eye has to be bandaged, the patient is really handicapped because he's totally blind until the doctor removes the patch. There are many people in this category – we get about one patient a month like this."

He points out that the procedure is also a boon to patients with conditions requiring blood-thinning medication.

"The cornea has no blood vessels, so you greatly reduce the chance of bleeding. The chance of hemorrhage in the eye is almost non-existent during this procedure. That is vital to a patient on blood thinners," Dr. Horsley explains.

Instant vision cataract surgery incorporates phacoemulsification, a technique Dr. Horsley introduced to the area. After the cornea is incised, a high frequency ultrasound beam is used to gently break up the nucleus of the cataract into very small particles. These particles are then suspended in a fluid solution and "vacuumed" through the very tiny incision. A foldable lens is then inserted into the mini-opening. The eye's own internal pressure closes the opening. This sutureless technique, also introduced to the area by Dr. Horsley, further reduces trauma to the patient's eye.

"To say that instant vision cataract surgery is just another improvement on the spectrum of cataract surgery is an understatement. Leading ophthalmic surgeons from across the country have described this technique as a demonstrably better way to perform cataract surgery," Dr. Horsley concludes.

Rose Mathews and her brother-in-law Fred, who had the procedure just an hour apart, are glad they were able to take advantage of the new procedure. They were pleased that Dr. Horsley scheduled their procedure the same day, so they could be there for one ar

"I guess you could say we supported each other through it. We're a pretty close family that way," Fred Mathews said.

VALLEY MEDICAL RESPONSE SYSTEM

Valley Medical Response System, an in-home electronic communication system that provides emergency medical assistance at the touch of a button, is available through Holy Family Hospital.

Valley Medical Response System provides security for its subscribers by setting up contacts with family, friends, neighbors and the monitor at Frontline Ambulance.

The system consists of a wireless pendant transmitter that is worn around the neck and a base unit about the size of a cable television box which attaches to a telephone. In the event of a crisis, the subscriber presses a button signaling the ambulance dispatch center that help is needed.

The system is inexpensive, reliable and offers security and peace of mind for the subscriber and family for a cost of only $25.00 a month and a one time installation fee of $25.00.

Tai Chi: Reduce stress, improve health, increase longevity

Reducing stress, improving health and increasing longevity. These may sound like the cures for the problems created by modern-day living, but actually these are the claims made by the Chinese (more than 2,000 years ago) to those who followed their prescription for health. The only catch is that these cures cannot be bought at the local pharmacy.

Centuries ago, the Chinese devised a series of exercises that promote relaxation, enhances circulation and increases vitality. Through refinements by a number of individuals who mastered the techniques, this knowledge evolved into a number of fields of study (Tai Chi, Chi Kung, to name a few), most of which were closely guarded secrets.

Tai Chi stresses soft and relaxed movements and encourages deep breathing, fluid movement and limber bodies. Training begins with exercises to stretch various muscle groups which normal calisthenics or aerobics usually do not cover. Participants are encouraged to work at their own pace and to the present limitations of their bodies. Incorporated within Tai Chi are Chi Kung (life's energy) breathing exercises which teach a deepening of the breath, leading to greater vitality and a reduction of stress in the body. The slow-motion Tai Chi movements help to calm the mind and release energy which may be focused on certain worries.

Adults of all ages, race, sex and ability participate in Tai Chi. Some see it as an easy way to begin a routine of daily exercise, while others seek relief from stress-related discomfort. Some participants report symptomatic relief from migraine headaches, sinus attacks, back and leg discomfort and psoriasis. Tai Chi does not claim to cure these conditions, but instead increases energy flow to release pent-up energy that, when improperly constrained, may lead to any of these above stress-related symptoms.

Tai Chi can be found right here in your community at Yang's Martial Arts Association of Andover. Yang's of Andover was established in June of 1988 and has since offered classes to hundreds of people from age 4 to 70. Yang's offers three basic areas of study: Kung Fu, Tai Chi and special lectures and courses by Dr. Yang Jwing-Ming.

Dr. Yang, founder and president of Yang's Oriental Arts and Yang's Martial Arts Associations, has dedicated most of his life to rediscovering, translating and teaching much of these Chinese techniques and theories. Dr. Yang's goal is to share his knowledge with as many people as possible through classes and the publication of more than 25 books and videos on these subjects. Alex Kiesel, chief instructor of Yang's in Andover, instructs and supervises all classes according to the proven methods learned directly from Dr. Yang.

Here are a couple things one should know about Medicare and lab tests

By Martha A. McSteen

Ever get stuck with the entire cost of a lab test such as urine analysis or blood work because Medicare denied the charges even though the test was necessary? Here are a few things one need to know before lab tests are done.

1. Medicare either pays 100 percent of a lab test or nothing at all.

2. Not all laboratories are approved by Medicare and some laboratories are approved only for certain kinds of tests. If the doctor orders tests that the laboratory is not approved to perform, Medicare does not pay for the tests and the patient is stuck with the entire bill. And when Medicare denies coverage, Medigap usually does too.

3. The lab must accept assignment. The lab is not allowed to bill the patient for the tests. The same goes for tests done at the physician's office. Even though the doctor does not usually accept assignment, he or she is required to do so for the tests. The doctor's office is not allowed to bill the patient for the tests. As long as the lab test is a clinical diagnostic test and not a routine, preventive test, Medicare reimburses at 100 percent, so there is no cost to the patient. The only preventive lab test Medicare covers is pap smear.

create an atmosphere of relaxed, but focused, concentration. Every program at Yang's is challenging and fun, with emphasis on showing students how to succeed by teaching them practical ways to achieve their goals by continued success.

Advances in science are beginning to confirm ideas first discovered in ancient China. People are beginning to re-examine this legacy which has been passed from one generation to the next. With all of the pressures of modern living, it's comforting to know there is a natural and easy way to become more relaxed and revitalized by spending a few minutes each day doing simple exercises. You can gain a less stressful and healthier body and have fun getting a workout at the same time. The invitation is open to find out more about the exciting possibilities for personal development. Woodbriar offers care to medically-complex patients

Woodbriar of Wilmington Rehabilitation and Skilled Nursing Center is a 142-bed facility which opened in February of 1993. The facility is conveniently located, just off Interstate 93 at Exit 38 in the midst of a 15-acre wooded site.

Woodbriar is proud to report that more than 25 major surrounding hospitals are now referring many of their patients to their facility.

"I believe our tremendous success is directly related to the commitment we have made in our rehabilitative programs and excellent skilled nursing care we are providing at Woodbriar," states Dennis Sargent, president of Northgate Healthcare Corporation.

Woodbriar made a commitment in seeking the most experienced staff in nursing, therapy, food service and general housekeeping. Its nursing staff is highly qualified in providing the services required in a transitional care facility, including IV therapies, and soon it will be able to provide peritoneal dialysis. Many staff members have come from acute care hospitals and rehabilitation hospitals. Its physical therapy and occupational therapy departments are bustling with experienced on-staff therapists restoring the function of our residents to their full capabilities. "We actually had a 99-year-old go home after therapy services here at Woodbriar," states Mr. Sargent.

Woodbriar of Wilmington offers superior care to medically-complex patients who need highly specialized nursing and medical treatment but do not require the complete service of an acute care hospital.

To the staff at Woodbriar, quality means investing both in people and surroundings to produce the best possible rehabilitation and nursing care facility.

Woodbriar of Wilmington is both Medicare and Medicaid certified. In addition, it participates with a number of Health Maintenance Organizations and managed care providers.

The center urgest people to visit. "See for yourself," the center personnel say. "We are offering a tremendous value in elderly, rehabilitative and transitional care that you can feel confident in referring a loved one, friend, associate or client."

Public awareness about hospice care is low

By Martha A. McSteen

Nationwide, about 200,000 patients each year are admitted to hospice programs. Although the number increases steadily each year, public awareness about hospice care is still low.

The purpose of hospice care is to provide a comprehensive range of services to help a patient and family manage a terminal illness.

Those who choose hospice care agree not to seek invasive treatment for their terminal condition other than to control pain.

Hospices provide nursing care, chaplaincy services, home health aides, physical and occupational therapy, dietary counseling, prescription drugs, medical supplies and equipment.

For seniors who decide on hospice, Medicare's coverage may help. Covered under Medicare Part A, the hospice benefit usually requires only a 5 percent co-payment on drugs and inpatient nursing home care to give short-term respite to the in-home caregiver

Additionally, care at home in a hospice program usually is less expensive overall than aggressive treatment as a hospital inpatient or than living in a nursing home.

In addition to Medicare, many private insurance plans cover hospice care.

Hospices provide nursing care, chaplaincy services, home-health aides, physical and occupational therapy, dietary counseling, prescription drugs, medical supplies and equipment.
